Israeli forces step up deadly raids in West Bank

AFP | Jenin, Palestinian Territories

 ${f I}$ srael pressed on with a large-scale military operation in the occupied West Bank against Palestinian fighters for a fourth day yesterday, while fierce fighting raged in the nearly 11-month Gaza war.

Despite the war in Gaza, a local health official in the Hamas-run territory said polio vaccinations had begun there.

The World Health Organization says Israel has agreed to a series of threeday "humanitarian pauses" to facilitate a mass vaccination campaign after the first confirmed polio case in Gaza in 25 years.

Houthis attacked ship off Yemen

AFP | Dubai

Yemen's Iran-backed Houthi rebels said yesterday they had attacked a merchant ship in the Gulf of Aden, as a multinational naval force said two missiles exploded near a Liberia-flagged vessel.

"The Yemeni Armed Forces carried out a military operation targeting the ship (GROTON) in the Gulf of Aden," Huthi spokesman Yahya Saree said in a televised statement.

He said the ship had been hit and that it was the second time it had been attacked after a similar incident on August 3.

Trump 'disrespected US sacred ground'

AFP | Washington

Democratic presidential candidate Kamala Harris said yesterday that her Republican rival Donald Trump "disrespected sacred ground" at a US military cemetery during a contentious pre-election visit. Trump's presence at the hallowed Arlington National Cemetery - intended to provide a campaign boost ahead of the November 5 vote - has instead mushroomed into a public dispute consuming the candidates and the military. "The former president disrespected sacred ground, all for the sake of a political stunt," Harris said.

Bahrain's proposed law to ensure safe tech development and drive innovation ahrain is taking a proactive approach to regulating artificial intelligence (AI) with a new proposed law that aims to establish a comprehensive legal framework for the emerging technology.

TDT | Manama

Ali Al Shahabi, a member of the Shura Council and Vice-President of its Human Rights Committee, highlighted the importance of this legislation in a recent interview with our sister newspaper Al Ayam.

He stressed the need for swift action in this rapidly evolving field, noting that many countries lack the necessary legal frameworks to govern AI effectively.

The proposed law advocates for the establishment of a dedicated unit to oversee AI development, protect investors, and ensure the safety of individuals. It also outlines specific guidelines and requirements to minimise exploitation and offer comprehensive protection to all users.

Rak Art Foundation holds exhibition for 20 Bahraini artists in Baku

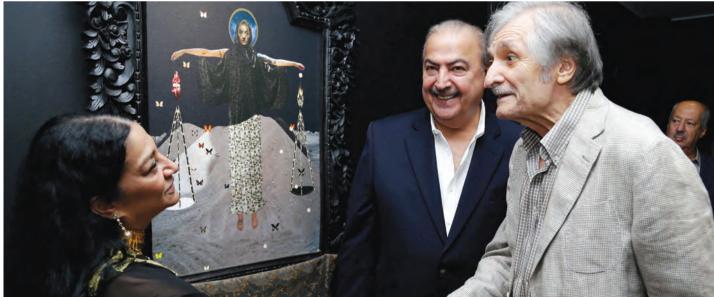

TDT | Manama

The RAK Art Foundation held its art exhibition at QGallery in Baku, Azerbaijan's capital on Friday, to a large number of Azerbaijani art enthusiasts.

The event was attended by the daughter of President of Azerbaijan, Vice President of the Heydar Aliyev Foundation Leyla Aliyeva, in addition to Assistant to the President of Azerbaijan, Executive Director of the Heydar Aliyev Foundation Anar Alakbarov, and Chairman of the Union of Artists of Azerbaijan, Farkhad Khalilov.

The exhibition, which runs until the end of September, features artworks by Bahraini artists from various generations and art schools from the Rashid Al Khalifa Art Foundation's holdings, in collaboration with a series of educational initiatives and programs, as well as an artistic exchange between the Foundation and the Azerbaijan State Academy of Art, which was announced in May.

Shaikh Rashid bin Khalifa Al Khalifa, President of the RAK Art Foundation, commented: "The opening of this exhibition, which promotes Bahraini art and cultural relations between the two countries, is an excellent opportunity to introduce the Kingdom of Bahrain to the global artistic and cultural are-

Ukraine was fully within its rights to launch its surprise offensive into Russia's Kursk border region as an act of self-defence, NATO chief Jens Stoltenberg told German newspaper Die

The offensive launched on August 6 caught the Kremlin off guard, with Kviv claiming to have captured dozens of settlements and more than 1,200 square kilometres (nearly 500 square miles) of territory.

"Ukraine has a right to defend itself. And according to international law, this right does not stop at the border," Stoltenberg said in an interview with Die Welt published Saturday.

"The Russian soldiers, tanks and bases there (Kursk) are legitimate targets under international

The offensive also surprised Kyiv's allies, with Stoltenberg saying Ukraine "did not preview its planning" with NATO and that the Western military alliance "played no role".

Stoltenberg also welcomed Germany's commitment to remain Ukraine's largest European military donor and second-largest worldwide, as Berlin prepares cuts to its aid to Kyiv in next year's budget.

Chancellor Olaf Scholz's government came under fierce criticism for the decision last week.

he world is being torn by countries pitched in battle, by natural disasters perpetuated by humankind's carelessness towards Nature and the world around us, by population explosion, food insecurity and many more problems.

Whom do we turn to in order to construct a response to these troubles? None other than the flawed but united global entity, the UN. A platform for all the countries of the world and one which, despite many failures and enemies, internal and external, has notched up genuine success in making the world a better place.

But the fact is that the UN was created just after WW2 and the world has changed tremendously since those days. Today we are facing vastly different challenges which require a different participation to address a new world that needs new ideas and new representation.

Now the scenario is different. The world's progress is timed to the pulse of oil wells and gas deposits in the MidEast and Africa is emerging as the fertile continent of the future, representing a dynamic force in shaping the progress of mankind. Is it not time then that the Arab and African representation on the Permanent Security Council of the UN is reviewed and made more inclusive? The winds of

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Income Proof for Tenants in Bahrain

I would like to bring to your attention an issue that has been a topic of concern among tenants in Bahrain. Recently, there has been an increasing trend where landlords are asking potential tenants for proof of income before signing rental agreements. While it's understandable that landlords wish to ensure tenants can meet their financial obligations, this practice raises several important questions and concerns.

Firstly, it's important to clarify whether this requirement is legally mandated in Bahrain or simply a discretionary measure employed by individual landlords. The absence of clear guidelines or legal requirements could lead to inconsistencies and potential discrimination against tenants who may not have a conventional or easily verifiable income stream, such as freelancers or small business owners. Moreover, such practices could inadvertently put undue pressure on tenants, particularly those who are new to the country or are in the process of stabilizing their finances. It is crucial to maintain a balance between a landlord's right to protect their investment and a tenant's right to privacy and dignity.

I urge the relevant authorities to review this matter and provide clear guidance to both landlords and tenants to prevent any potential abuse or misunderstanding. A fair and transparent rental process is essential for maintaining trust and ensuring a healthy housing market in Bahrain.

John Mathew Resident of Manama

Locked Internet Routers in Bahrain

I am writing to highlight an issue that has been increasingly frustrating for many residents in Bahrain—the practice of locking internet routers by Internet Service Providers (ISPs). This practice, which essentially binds customers to specific routers provided by their ISPs, restricts consumer choice and potentially hinders the quality of internet service available in the country.

In many other regions, customers have the freedom to choose their own routers, allowing them to opt for devices that better meet their needs in terms of coverage, speed, and advanced features. However, in Bahrain, it appears that ISPs have adopted a policy of locking routers, making it difficult or impossible for consumers to use a router of their choice. This not only limits the consumer's ability to upgrade their home network but also raises questions about whether this practice is in the best interest of the customer.

The rationale provided by ISPs often revolves around the need to maintain network stability and offer seamless customer support. While these are valid concerns, it is important to consider whether there are alternative ways to address them without restricting consumer freedom. Other countries have managed to strike a balance by allowing customers to use their preferred routers while still offering technical support for ISP-provided devices.

Moreover, locked routers can lead to additional expenses for consumers, especially when they move to a new provider or need to replace outdated equipment. This practice could be seen as a way to artificially lock customers into contracts or services, potentially limiting competition and innovation within the telecommunications sector.

I believe it is time for a re-evaluation of this practice in Bahrain. Allowing consumers the freedom to choose their own routers would not only empower them to enhance their internet experience but also encourage ISPs to improve the quality and competitiveness of their services.

I urge the relevant authorities and regulatory bodies to consider the implications of this practice and explore solutions that would benefit both consumers and the broader market.

Sincerely, Mohammed Fahad Sitra

Arsenal pay price for Rice red card, Villa too good for Leicester

AFP | London, United Kingdom

rsenal's Premier League title challenge hit its first stumbling block in a 1-1 draw with Brighton after Declan Rice was sent-off on Saturday, while Aston Villa won 2-1 away at Leicester.

Both Arsenal and Brighton had maximum points from their opening two games and the Gunners looked set for another victory when Kai Havertz pounced on a Lewis Dunk error to lob in the opening goal.

However, the game turned just seconds into the second half when Rice controversially received the first red card of his

The England midfielder was deemed to have kicked the ball away as Joel Veltman shaped up to take a Brighton free-kick and was shown a second yellow card.

"I was amazed, amazed, amazed!" an outraged Arsenal boss Mikel Arteta said. "Amazed because of how inconsistent decisions can be.

"In the first half, there are two incidents and nothing happens. Then, in a non-critical area, the ball hits Declan, he turns around, he doesn't see the player coming and he touches the ball."

Brighton quickly made their man advantage count as Joao Pedro swept home the rebound defender #12 Lucas Digne (R) celebrate after David Raya denied Yankuba Minteh.

Both sides had chances to win it as Bart Verbruggen denied visitors.

Novak Djokovic's latest bid Slam title crashed to a halt on Friday as 28th-ranked Alexei Popyrin knocked the defending champion out of the US Open third round.

One day after third seed Carlos Alcaraz slumped to a shock defeat against 74th-ranked Botic van de Zandschulp, 25-year-old Popyrin robbed the tournament of another superstar with a 6-4, 6-4, 2-6, 6-4 victory.

Popyrin handed Djokovic his earliest US Open exit in 18 years and his earliest Grand Slam exit since he fell in the second round Serbia's Novak Djokovic plays a backhand return against Australia's Alexei Popyrin of the Australian Open in 2017 a single Grand Slam title.

Although he won the Olympic gold he had long coveted at the Paris Games, an uneven season that included knee surgery saw Djokovic come up empty in the majors. He had beaten Popyrin in three prior encounters, including at the Australian Open and Wimbledon this year.

Frenchman Doulon strikes Paralympic cycling gold as Britons fall short

Paris, France

m ritain's}$ Archie Atkinson and Jaco van Gass came up short in Paralympic track cycling on Saturday as home favourite Dorian Foulon sent the Paris velodrome into raptures by t aking gold.

World champion Atkinson, who only turned 20 in July, had to accept silver after slipping and falling dramatically off his bike in the C4 4000m individual pursuit.

Slovakia's Jozef Metelka cruised to gold as the Briton, was still lying on the

"I think I'm OK after the crash, I can see and all in one piece," Atkinson, who has cerebral palsy, attention deficit disorder and is autistic, told British broadcaster Channel 4.

"I've never dug that deep before," he added.

South African-born Gass finished fourth in the men's C1-3 1000m time trial after having clinched gold in the C3 3000m individual pursuit final on Friday.

The 38-year-old, who lost his lower left arm in 2009, clocked a world record time but dropped out of medal positions due to the Paralympic track cycling classification system.

"It's heartbreaking to be very honest," Gass said.

"It's just the factoring system, it shows that they don't quite have it

'To ride a world record and not be right in the medals, it shows that the factoring system needs a bit of work," he added.
