HM King: Education key to peace and fighting extremism

HM the King

TDT | Manama

His Majesty King Hamad bin Isa Al Khalifa reaffirmed the role of education in combatting all forms of extremism that oppose peace.

He also reiterated the Kingdom of Bahrain's dedication to peace and fostering strong relations with neighbouring countries, as highlighted in the recent Arab summit.

HM the King was speaking as he received senior members of the royal family, officials, citizens, and top-performing students from different educational levels yesterday at Sakhir Palace.

His Majesty emphasised Bahrain's steadfast stance against escalation and incitement, calling for respect for human and religious values, and maintaining regional stability.

He voiced concern over the devastating impact of wars and unjustified conflicts in various countries, urging their leaders to reassess their positions and prioritise the well-being of their people.

HM the King said that focus must be on the provision of essential services, such as healthcare, education, housing, and employment, to ensure a dignified life for all citizens.

He concluded by praying for peace and security worldwide and expressed appreciation for the unity and loyalty of the Bahraini people in safeguarding the nation's stability.

Eight Israel soldiers dead as Hezbollah claims to repel incursion

AFP | Beirut

Hezbollah said it repelled an Israeli infiltration into southern Lebanon yesterday, as Israel reported eight soldiers were killed - its first losses since launching cross-border raids this week.

The clashes came hours after Iran launched its largest missile attack yet on Israel, its sworn enemy.

Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu warned Tehran would pay for its "big mistake".

Iran, which backs Hezbollah, said it would step up its response if Israel retaliates, defying calls for de-escalation in a war that has cost more than 1,000 lives in Lebanon.

Strike

US President Joe Biden ruled out supporting an Israeli strike on Iran's nuclear sites, while Iranian President Masoud Pezeshkian again warned of a "stronger" response, though he stressed Iran was "not looking for war".

Israel, shifting its focus from the Gaza war sparked by Hamas's October 7 attacks, is now trying to secure its border with Lebanon so tens of thousands of Israelis displaced by nearly a year of exchanges of fire with Hezbollah can return home.

A day after its military said it was conducting "targeted ground raids" in south Lebanon, Israel reported the first death of a soldier in the Israel-Hezbollah war, a toll that later rose to eight dead.

Israel bombarded Hezbollah's south Beirut stronghold, having dealt a significant blow to the group last week by killing its leader, Hassan Nasrallah, in a massive strike.

Retreat

Hezbollah said it forced Israeli soldiers to retreat, targeted an Israeli unit with explosives and destroyed three Merkava tanks with rockets as they advanced on Maroun al-Ras village.

The Israeli army said it staged two brief incursions into Lebanon, warning residents to evacuate more than 20 areas.

In Beirut, Hezbollah targets in the southern suburbs were repeatedly bombarded overnight, with AFP correspondents hearing about 20 explosions and seeing smoke billowing over the area.

The Syrian Observatory for Human Rights war monitor said an Israeli strike on a Damascus neighbourhood frequented by Hezbollah leaders and Iranian Revolutionary Guards killed two people.

Ground operations

Hours after Israel announced the start of ground operations in Lebanon, Iran fired some 200 missiles including hypersonic weapons, sending frightened Israeli civilians into shelters.

Royal praise for RMAS vital role

TDT | Manama

His Majesty King Hamad bin Isa Al Khalifa, the Supreme Commander of the Armed Forces, commended the role of the Royal Military Academy Sandhurst (RMAS) in training officers of the Bahrain Defence Force (BDF), recognising its significant contribution to military education.

HM the King made the statement as he received Major General Zac Stenning, Commandant of the RMAS, at Sakhir Palace yesterday during his visit to Bahrain.

He welcomed Major General Stenning and emphasised the deep, historical ties between Bahrain and the United Kingdom.

His Majesty noted the ongoing development of cooperation in various domains, which supports shared goals and mutual interests.

Man's jail term reduced for arson in mother's car fire

TDT | Manama

Flames

The High Appeals Court has reduced the sentence of a 24-year-old man from six to three months in prison for deliberately setting fire to his mother's car, as well as another vehicle.

The victim, who is also the defendant's mother, had previously waived her right to pursue criminal charges against him.

The Public Prosecution accused the defendant of intentionally igniting a fire in the property owned by his mother and another individual, thereby endangering the lives and property of others.

The victim, a 46-year-old woman, testified that her other son informed her about the incident on the day it occurred, relaying that neighborhood children had seen the defendant starting a fire in her vehicle.

She immediately rushed outside and discovered her car damaged by the flames.

Additionally, a neighbor informed her that her son had poured a flammable substance on the vehicle.

The neighbor also reported that a child from the neighborhood witnessed the defendant heading to a petrol station to fill a container with gasoline.

Witness

Another witness testified that restaurant workers had told him someone was responsible for setting the car on fire.

He rushed outside, saw the fire, and used a fire extinguisher from his vehicle to put it out.

When he inquired about the cause of the fire, he was informed that the defendant was the one who had started it.

GCC man loses appeal for killing infant

TDT | Manama

The High Appeals Court has upheld the sentences in the tragic case involving the death of a six-month-old baby, sentencing a 22-year-old GCC national to seven years in prison for causing the child's death.

Three Asian women were also implicated and found guilty for their roles in the incident: the baby's caregiver received three years and six months in prison, the baby's mother was sentenced to six months, and the caregiver's friend received a three-year sentence.

A chilling picture of the events leading to the baby's death emerged during the trial, particularly through the testimony of the forensic doctor who examined the infant's body.

The doctor revealed that the child had suffered from intracranial hemorrhage, a severe injury that proved fatal.

The court heard that the GCC national, along with the child's caregiver, a 29-year-old Asian woman, were present in the house at the time of the incident.

They were accompanied by the caregiver's friend, also an Asian woman who worked as a prostitute.

The baby's mother, a 32-year-old Asian woman, had entrusted her child to their care.

The prosecution alleged that the GCC national, fueled by anger over the baby's crying, struck the child repeatedly in the face.

When confronted by the caregiver about the assault, he showed no remorse.

CSB guidelines prohibit government employees from including job titles and contact info in profiles

Government tightens social media rules

H. Naser
TDT | Manama

The Civil Service Bureau (CSB) has issued new social media guidelines for government employees, placing a strong emphasis on the responsible use of online platforms.

A key element of these guidelines is a ban on including job titles and contact information in personal social media profiles.

However, if an employee is a public figure whose position is widely known, a disclaimer must be added stating that online activities and comments reflect only their personal views and do not represent the official position of their government agency.

The guidelines, published on the CSB's Instagram account, aim to clarify acceptable online behaviour for government employees using platforms such as X (formerly Twitter), Facebook, and Instagram.

Moreover, employees are instructed to engage with social media in a polite and factual manner, refraining from posting messages or articles that could negatively reflect on their workplace, superiors, the government, or any other entity.

Decency and conduct

Unacceptable behavior includes violating general standards of decency and conduct, engaging in rude or inappropriate behavior, acting unethically, or misusing one's position to harm individuals or religious groups.

The CSB stated that it reserves the right to take appropriate action against any employee who misuses social media.

The CSB's directive underscores the importance of separating personal online identities from official government roles.

Reputation
The prohibition on including job titles and contact details in personal profiles is designed to protect both individual employees and the government's reputation.

This measure aims to prevent the potential misuse of official information and to avoid any confusion between personal opinions and official government stances.

The CSB's updated guidelines reflect a proactive approach to managing the online presence of government employees, aiming to balance personal expression with the need to maintain professional standards and protect sensitive information.

Shocking truth behind 'Khatwa' program

Investigation into 'Productive Home' initiative reveals only 133 genuine applicants out of 1,413

TDT | Manama

The Ministerial Committee for Legal and Legislative Affairs has completed its investigation into the "Khatwa" program, which aims to provide social insurance benefits for productive families.

The 'Khatwa' or the 'Productive Home' programme is a government initiative since 2011 to support the informal economy and provides benefits for productive families for their registered products, including free marketing and retirement benefits through social insurance.

The investigation revealed that only 133 out of 1,413 applicants had genuinely engaged in productive activities during the service periods included in their applications.

In a statement, the committee emphasised its commitment to ensuring that the program effectively benefits eligible citizens while preventing the misuse of funds from the Social Insurance Organization (SIO).

The committee noted, "The investigation reviewed a total of 1,413 applications, focusing on individuals who included previous periods of service. To facilitate this review, we contacted all applicants via text messages and social media announcements through the SIO and Bahrain News Agency platforms."

The statement further explained that applicants were given the opportunity to provide documentation proving they held a license for productive activity and had renewed their registration annually.

Documents and clarifications

They could submit supporting documents and clarifications through a dedicated webpage on the SIO website or in person.

Of the 1,413 cases reviewed, 1,094 (77%) submitted the required documentation and clarifications.

The committee meticulously ly examined over 8,000 documents and addressed 190 separate notes during the review process.

In conclusion, the committee highlighted the importance of collaborative efforts to safeguard the funds of the Social Insurance Organization and reaffirmed its commitment to achieving this goal.

Additionally, three employees from the Ministry of Social Development have been sentenced to prison terms and hefty fines for forging documents related to the Khatwa program, allowing applicants to receive unearned social insurance benefits.

Fake app, real crime

12 fraudsters caught in digital payment scam face trial at High Criminal Court

Mohammed Darwish
TDT | Manama

A network of 12 fraudsters, masquerading as employees of a digital payment app, has been caught transferring funds from unsuspecting victims after tricking them into revealing their confidential banking details.

The suspects, all of Asian nationality, are now facing trial at the High Criminal Court for their elaborate scam, which involved cold-calling individuals and sending out false bank updates.

The Public Prosecution revealed the details yesterday.

Investigations found that the suspects randomly dialled phone numbers, pretending to be legitimate employees of the payment app.

By urging victims to update their banking information, the fraudsters were able to obtain secret verification codes, which they then used to unlawfully transfer money.

The Anti-Economic Crime Directorate reported the case based on intelligence gathered by confidential sources at the General Directorate of Anti-Corruption and Economic and Electronic Security at the interior ministry.

Following the report, the Public Prosecution immediately launched its investigation, interviewing victims and interrogating the arrested suspects.

The suspects were presented with evidence, including the contents of their mobile phones used to carry out the crime.

Investigators uncovered communications between members of the network and links to outside support, including messages and fraudulent links impersonating both public and private institutions, further exposing the extent of the fraud.

Custody

Testimony from the investigating officer further strengthened the case, leading to the suspects being referred to the High Criminal Court, where they remain in custody awaiting trial.

In response to the incident, the Head of Cybercrime Prosecution has warned the public to exercise caution when receiving unsolicited calls, particularly from individuals claiming to represent banks or financial institutions.

She stressed that legitimate organisations would never ask for sensitive banking information over the phone, emphasising the importance of protecting personal data to prevent it from falling into the wrong hands.

EU aviation agency advises airlines to avoid Iran airspace

Paris, France

The European Union Aviation Safety Agency on Wednesday advised all European airlines to avoid Iranian airspace, following an Iranian attack against Israel.

"In view of the Iranian attack against Israel on October 1, 2024, and Israel's announcement of its intention to retaliate," the advisory warned carriers "not to perform flights in the airspace of Iran at all flight levels," EASA said.

News in brief

Germany yesterday said it had organised a second military flight to evacuate its nationals from Lebanon, after Israel launched ground raids into its neighbour and Iran fired missiles at Israel. An Airbus A330 MRTT departed for Beirut to pick up 130 German nationals considered "particularly vulnerable", Germany's foreign and defence ministries said in a joint statement.

Israel deploys Iron Dome, Slings and Arrows against rockets and missiles

AFP | Paris, France

Israel's Iron Dome air defence system is just one part of a multi-layered missile shield that the state has deployed and which again proved its worth against Iran's missile barrage Tuesday.

Where Iron Dome offers short-range protection against missiles and rockets, its counterparts David's Sling and Arrow offer long-range protection against cruise missiles at ranges of between 40 and 300 kilometres.

Thousands of rockets fired by Hezbollah and Hamas have been intercepted by Iron Dome since it entered service in 2011. Developer Rafael says the system can stop up to 90 percent of incoming projectiles.

Iron Dome can bring down rockets and missiles over a range of 70 kilometres (43 miles). Israel began work on Iron Dome following its 2006 war in Lebanon, with the first battery deployed in March 2011 in Beersheba, 40 kilometres (25 miles) from Gaza.

Nine more of the mobile units have since been deployed around Israeli territory, according to a US Senate report from March last year. Each battery is made up of three launchers, each stocked with 20 intercept missiles.

They are launched only if the battery's radar detector and computer calculate that an enemy missile is headed for an inhabited or strategic zone.

While Israel developed and began building Iron Dome, it struck a production deal with the United States in 2014 that led to a 2020 joint venture between Rafael and US-based Raytheon (now RTX).

teries in 2019.

David's Sling

Named after the Biblical story in which shepherd David defeats the giant warrior Goliath armed only with a sling, the second layer of Israel's defence targets long-range rockets and cruise missiles at ranges of between 40 and 300 kilometres. Each launcher holds up to 12 missiles designed to destroy targets by colliding with them, rather than detonating an explosive charge -- known in military jargon as a "hit-to-kill".

Developed jointly by Rafael and Raytheon and operational since 2017, two David's Sling batteries cover all of Israel's territory. Finland said in November that it would acquire a David's Sling system for 317 million euros ($350 million).

Arrow

With technological roots going back to the US Strategic Defence Initiative launched by President Ronald Reagan in the 1980s, Arrow II and III were developed jointly by US-based Boeing and Israeli Aerospace Industries (IAI).

Arrow II, whose first successful interception test came in August 2020, has a range of up to 500km (310 miles).

With a range estimated at 2,400 km, Arrow III goes further by targeting incoming ballistic missiles outside Earth's atmosphere, more than 100 km above the surface. Israel tested Arrow III successfully in January 2022.

Both systems were fired on Tuesday against Iran's missiles, with IAI claiming success. Germany said in September 2023 that it would buy Arrow III systems worth an estimated $3.5 billion as part of its European Sky Shield Initiative (ESSI).

British jets 'played their part': UK

London, United Kingdom

UK armed forces "played their part in attempts to prevent further escalation" after Iran fired a barrage of missiles at Israel, the British government said yesterday.

Two Royal Air Force Typhoon jets and a Voyager air-to-air refuelling tanker were involved in the operation to support Israel late Tuesday, the Ministry of Defence said in a statement.

"Due to the nature of this attack, they did not engage any targets, but they played an important part in wider deterrence and efforts to prevent further escalation," it said. In a statement late Tuesday, Defence Secretary John Healey condemned Iran's latest actions.

"British forces have this evening played their part in attempts to prevent further escalation in the Middle East," he said. "The UK stands fully behind Israel's right to defend its country and its people against threats." The UK is planning for a possible evacuation in case the fighting leads to the closure of Beirut's airport. Foreign Secretary David Lammy confirmed Wednesday that the first charter flight taking British nationals out of Lebanon "has now departed".

G7 says 'diplomatic solution still possible'

AFP | Rome, Italy

The G7 yesterday vowed to work together to reduce tensions in the Middle East and said a diplomatic solution to prevent widening conflict "is still possible".

Italian Prime Minister Giorgia Meloni -- whose country holds the G7 presidency this year -- called a telephone meeting of the body Wednesday to address of tensions at the regional level," said the statement released by the Italian government.

"In expressing strong concern for the escalation of these last hours, it was reiterated that a conflict on a regional scale is in no one's interest and that a diplomatic solution is still possible," said the statement, which reiterated the G7's "firm condemnation" for Iran's attack against Israel.

United Nations Secretary-General Antonio Guterres condemned the "broadening conflict in the Middle East".

With Israel's conflict with Hezbollah broadening alongside its ongoing war with Palestinian Hamas militants in Gaza, Guterres slammed "escalation after escalation" in the region. "This must stop. We absolutely need a ceasefire."

Foreign Minister Jose Manuel Albares said Madrid was issuing "a new call to all the actors, obviously including Israel, to show restraint and not escalation".

'Strongest' terms: France

French President Emmanuel Macron condemned Iran's attacks against Israel "in the strongest possible terms", adding that France had "mobilised" its military resources in the Middle East to counter Tehran.

Macron also demanded that "Hezbollah cease its terrorist actions against Israel and its population", while asking Israel to "put an end to their military operations as soon as possible".

'Steadfast commitment': Britain

British Prime Minister Keir Starmer condemned Iran's attack "in the strongest terms". During a call with his Israeli counterpart Benjamin Netanyahu, Starmer also "expressed the UK's steadfast commitment to Israeli security and the protection of civilians."

'Defuse the situation': Japan

Japan's new Prime Minister Shigeru Ishiba said missile attacks by Iran on Israel were "unacceptable". "We will condemn this strongly. But at the same time, we would like to cooperate (with the United States) to defuse the situation and prevent it from escalating into a full-on war," he said.

Hamas said the attack was retaliation for killings including Hezbollah chief Hassan Nasrallah in Beirut and Hamas leader Ismail Haniyeh in Tehran.

Iran purposely stayed below the Israeli air defense saturation point: US veteran

After an Israeli strike on Iran's consulate in the Syrian capital Damascus in April, Tehran retaliated for the first time, firing 300 missiles and drones at the Jewish state, almost all of which were intercepted. Tuesday's attack saw another 200 missiles fired, again with little military impact, meaning they were largely "symbolic", according to K.

How might Israel react?

James Demmin-De Lise, an author and political analyst who has written a book about Israel and anti-Semitism, said he thought Israel would seek to press home its advantage. "Iran is now thoroughly weakened, as its proxies have been decimated," he said.

"We are about to see a rather dramatic power shift," he added. "In this case, I think we'll see Israel launch decisive attacks against Iran, likely with the hope of toppling the Islamic regime." Former Israeli prime minister Naftali Bennett argued on Wednesday for a more targeted military attack on Iran's nuclear facilities.

But Israel is already fighting on two fronts: in Gaza -- where more than 41,000 Palestinians have died, according to the Hamas-run health ministry -- as well as in southern Lebanon where troops began a ground operation to target Hezbollah on Tuesday.

Would it risk provoking a third war? "Israel has had a lot of successes in the last two weeks, which they wouldn't want to jeopardize," Alterman from the Center for Strategic and International Studies said.

He said Israel would have to choose between "two instincts of lock in a gain, or double down on a strategy that's been giving results."

'Sickening cycle of escalation' in Mideast must stop, UN chief says

AFP | United Nations, United States

UN chief Antonio Guterres called for an end to the "sickening cycle of escalation" in the Middle East, while specifically condemning Iran over its latest missile attack after facing harsh criticism from Israel.

The secretary-general was speaking at an emergency meeting of the UN Security Council, called after Iran on Tuesday launched a massive missile barrage at Israel, which has ramped up its offensive against Hezbollah in Lebanon.

"It is high time to stop the sickening cycle of escalation after escalation that is leading the people of the Middle East straight over the cliff," the UN chief said.

"This deadly cycle of tit-for-tat violence must stop."

Earlier Wednesday, Israel had declared Guterres "persona non grata" for failing to specifically condemn Iran's missile attack when he condemned on Tuesday the "broadening conflict in the Middle East."

"Anyone who cannot unequivocally condemn Iran's heinous attack on Israel does not deserve to step foot on Israeli soil," said Foreign Minister Israel Katz in a statement.

Guterres addressed the diplomatic dust-up at the Security Council, saying "as should have

"I don't think Iran wants a big regional war," Jon Alterman, a Middle East expert at the Center for Strategic and International Studies, a Washington-based think-tank, said.

He said Israel would have to choose between "two instincts of lock in a gain, or double down on a strategy that's been giving results."

Unfair Salary Deductions

I want to talk about something that's really been bothering me and a lot of people here in Bahrain – unfair salary deductions. It's crazy how some companies are cutting people's pay for things like showing up late because of traffic or making small mistakes that don't deserve such a harsh response. It's just not right.

We're all dealing with tough times, and for employers to take money away over little things is adding more stress to people's lives. It's not just hurting people financially; it's killing morale at work. People start feeling unappreciated and lose motivation, and when that happens, nobody wins. Workers feel down, and the companies don't get the best out of their employees either.

What's even worse is that these practices seem to go unchecked. Some companies are either not understanding or straight-up ignoring the labour laws that are supposed to protect us. Cutting someone's pay shouldn't be a way to punish them for minor stuff that's often out of their control. We need more fairness and transparency from these companies.

I'm really hoping the government steps in and looks into this because it's getting out of hand. We need stronger rules to make sure companies follow the law and don't take advantage of their employees. Respecting workers and giving them a fair deal isn't just the right thing to do – it makes everything better. People work harder when they feel appreciated, and that helps both the workers and the businesses.

It's time for companies to start respecting their workers and stop these unfair pay cuts. No one should have to worry about losing money unfairly, and I'm calling on the government to help fix this. We all deserve better.

Ensuring the Success of Bahrain's Metro Project

The announcement of Bahrain's 109-kilometre light rail metro project has raised hopes for a more efficient transportation network. This ambitious project has the potential to address pressing concerns such as road congestion and limited public transport options. However, I feel the need to emphasize the importance of thorough planning, efficient implementation, and accountability throughout its development.

Historically, large-scale projects in Bahrain have faced issues with delays, budget overruns, and underperformance. Given these past experiences, it is crucial that the authorities ensure rigorous oversight and transparency during every phase of this project. Clear communication with the public and other stakeholders can help avoid any mismanagement that could lead to future dissatisfaction.

Moreover, the pricing of metro services should be made affordable for the average citizen. While attracting international investments and promoting infrastructure development are vital, we must not overlook the everyday Bahraini who will rely on this service. If the costs are too high, many people may be deterred from using the metro, defeating its purpose of alleviating traffic congestion.

In addition to accessibility, integrating the metro system with other forms of public transportation and ensuring seamless connectivity to key areas such as business hubs, educational institutions, and hospitals is essential. Such considerations will maximize the project's benefit and foster a more connected urban environment.

Ultimately, the metro could transform Bahrain's transportation landscape, but only if lessons from past projects are heeded. I hope this initiative becomes a symbol of progress rather than another missed opportunity.

Earth will have a temporary 'mini moon' for two months

WASHINGTON (AP) — Earth's moon will soon have some company — a "mini moon."

The mini moon is actually an asteroid about the size of a school bus at 33 feet (10 meters). When it whizzes by Earth on Sunday, it will be temporarily trapped by our planet's gravity and orbit the globe — but only for about two months.

The space rock — 2024 PT5 — was first spotted in August by astronomers at Complutense University of Madrid using a powerful telescope located in Sutherland, South Africa.

These short-lived mini moons are likely more common than we realize, said Richard Binzel, an astronomer at Massachusetts Institute of Technology. The last known one was detected in 2020.

"This happens with some frequency, but we rarely see them because they're very small and very hard to detect," he said. "Only recently has our survey capability reached the point of spotting them routinely."

The discovery by Carlos de la Fuente Marcos and Raúl de la Fuente Marcos was published by the American Astronomical Society.

This one won't be visible to the naked eye or through amateur telescopes, but it "can be observed with relatively large, research-grade telescopes," Carlos de la Fuente Marcos said in an email.

Binzel, who was not involved in the research, said it's not clear whether the space rock originated as an asteroid

E-scooters are they really safe?

Bahrain's urban hotspots like Manama, Juffair, and Tubli are buzzing with the growing trend of e-scooters. They're affordable, eco-friendly, and perfect for avoiding traffic jams – a win for the city, right?

But are they really safe? While many love their speed and ease, others are raising concerns about potential dangers. What do YOU think? Are e-scooters a traffic solution or a safety risk?

Need to provide a separate access for E-scooters, they should wear Helmet and maintain some speed limits wherever necessary.

It's not a question whether e-scooters are a traffic solution; it is clear that they are not. However, they can help alleviate traffic congestion and offer a convenient, environmentally friendly alternative to cars.

With regards to the question if they are a safety risk, like any other mode of transportation, including cars, motorcycles, bikes, and even trains, electric-scooters involve risks. Accidents can occur, especially when riders do not follow traffic rules or ride recklessly. Unfortunately, some riders lack common sense, but we should not generalize. There are groups with strict policies, such as 'no helmet, no ride,' and all riders are required to follow Bahrain's traffic rules. Unfortunately, sometimes, people only see these irresponsible electric scooter riders and not the responsible ones.

There should be routes for e scooters or as "a chunk of the moon that got blasted out." The mini moon will circle the globe for almost 57 days but won't complete a full orbit. On Nov. 25, it will part ways with the Earth and continue its solo trajectory through the cosmos. It's expected to pass by again in 2055.

Tim Southee stood down as New Zealand captain yesterday in the wake of their heavy Test series defeat in Sri Lanka and will be replaced by Tom Latham.

Less than two years after inheriting the role from Kane Williamson, veteran seam bowler Southee said it is “best for the team” that he focus on his contribution as a player and wished Latham well.

Opening batsman Latham, who has led the Black Caps in nine Tests, will take charge full-time on the three-Test tour of India starting in Bangalore on October 16.

A New Zealand Cricket statement said Southee would be included in the 15-man tour squad to be named later this week.

Southee said it was an “absolute honour” to lead New Zealand in 14 Tests since December 2022, resulting in six wins, six losses and two draws. However, New Zealand’s “I’ve always tried to put the team first throughout my career and I believe this decision is the best for the team,” Southee said in a statement.

Djokovic hopes Sinner doping case ‘resolved as soon as possible’

AFP | Shanghai

Novak Djokovic said yesterday that he hoped current world number one Jannik Sinner’s steroid case would be “resolved as soon as possible”, as he again bemoaned the tennis anti-doping system’s “inconsistencies”.

Sinner failed two doping tests in March but was cleared of wrongdoing and allowed to keep playing by tennis authorities.

But the World Anti-Doping Agency (WADA) said Saturday it had mounted an appeal, and was seeking a ban of up to two years.

Djokovic had previously said he could “understand the sentiments of a lot of players” who were questioning whether Sinner’s rank had protected him.

Yesterday, speaking at a press conference at the Shanghai Masters, the former world number one acknowledged it must be “very tough” for the Italian.

“I think it’s quite obvious that we have a system that is not working well... There’s way too many inconsistencies, way too many governing bodies involved and, you know, just this whole case is not helping our sport at all,” the 37-year-old said.

“Whatever is going to happen at the end of the day, just I wish for it to be resolved as soon as possible.”

Tennis authorities accepted Sinner’s explanation that trace amounts of a steroid unintentionally entered his system from a physiotherapist who used a spray containing it to treat a cut, then provided massage and sports therapy to the player.

The WADA appeal has reignited the case, with Sinner saying he has had sleepless nights over the issue.

Alcaraz triumphs in Beijing thriller

Spanish four-time Grand Slam champion overcomes Sinner in three-set epic to claim first China Open title

● Alcaraz wins 6-7, 6-4, 7-6 in over three-hour battle

● Victory ends Sinner's 14-match winning streak

● Alcaraz set to return to world number two ranking

AFP | Beijing

Carlos Alcaraz roared back from a set down to beat world number one Jannik Sinner in a thriller and win his first China Open title yesterday.

The four-time Grand Slam champion from Spain edged a captivating final 6-7 (6/8), 6-4, 7-6 (7/3) for his fourth ATP crown of the year and 16th overall.

Alcaraz, who is set to return to number two in the world behind Sinner, was 3-0 down in the final-set tie break only to fight back and win in three hours, 21 minutes.

The dramatic triumph ended Sinner's run of 14 victories in a row and saw him deposed as the Beijing champion after an almighty fight.

"What can I say about the year you're having, it's unbelievable," Alcaraz told Sinner at the victory presentation.

"I respect you a lot as a player, but even more as a person."

US Open champion Sinner has been playing in Beijing under fresh scrutiny.

The Italian has admitted to sleepless nights over his doping case, which was reignited at the weekend when the World Anti-Doping Agency (WADA) said it had appealed the decision to clear him.

In front of a packed house in the Chinese capital, the early exchanges were nervy with both players under immediate pressure on their service games.

Sinner, 23, was the first to blink, with second-seeded Alcaraz breaking for a 3-1 lead and celebrating with a fist pump. The Spaniard held easily for 4-1 and had his opponent uncharacteristically rattled.

Alcaraz, 21, served for the set but US Open champion Sinner grabbed the break back when he needed it most.

Sinner then saved set point on his own serve to force the tie break, and saved another in the tie break before taking the set at his first opportunity when Alcaraz fired long.

It was the first set Alcaraz had dropped all week.

The second set was just as tight.

es come and go but they went with serve until Alcaraz broke for 5-4, before holding with ease to send the final into a third set.

The decider again went to a tie break, where Alcaraz finally prevailed on his first match point.

"It was a great battle again," said Sinner, who twice tested positive for a steroid in March but tennis authorities cleared him of wrongdoing and allowed him to keep playing.

In August, the International Tennis Integrity Agency (ITIA) accepted Sinner's explanation that the drug entered his system unintentionally when his physiotherapist used a spray containing it to treat a cut, then provided massage and sports therapy to the player.

WADA on Saturday said it had appealed and was seeking a ban of up to two years.

Ruthless Sabalenka

In the women's draw, top seed Aryna Sabalenka won her 15th

The intense final saw Alcaraz battle back from a 3-0 deficit in the final-set tiebreak, showcasing his resilience and determination to clinch the championship in a grueling three-hour, 21-minute contest match in a row to power into the quarter-finals with a 6-4, 6-3 victory over Madison Keys.

The US Open champion will face Karolina Muchova of the Czech Republic.

World number two Sabalenka has won more matches on tour this season than anyone else and extended her red-hot streak with a fairly routine victory over the 24th-ranked American.

Sabalenka is on a collision course in the semi-finals with China's Olympic champion Zheng Qinwen, who faces 43rd-ranked Amanda Anisimova in the last 16 later yesterday.

Pakistan rudderless after white-ball skipper Azam resigns

AFP | Karachi

Pakistan's limited-overs team was leaderless yesterday after captain Babar Azam resigned, compounding a management crisis experts say has badly affected the team's international performance.

Pakistani cricket is flailing in all formats after a series of stinging losses, with a revolving door of bosses and allegations that nepotism has seeped into the sport.

Azam announced his resignation on his personal social media just before midnight on Tuesday, before an official Pakistan Cricket Board (PCB) statement more than 12 hours later.

Pakistan cricket has ploughed through four coaches, three board heads and four captains in the past two years, at the same time sliding down international standings.

"It's a leadership crisis," former Pakistan captain Rashid Latif told AFP.

"Pakistan cricket is in the ICU with no specialist for treatment."

Azam's resignation came hours before England touched down yesterday for a three-match Test series that follows Pakistan's humiliating 2-0 home series defeat to lowly ranked Bangladesh last month.
