BenneFin: Bridging the Gap for Bahrain's SMEs

As Bahrain's fintech sector flourishes, SMEs are reaping the rewards

TDT | Manama

In a world where small and medium enterprises (SMEs) often find themselves caught between limited traditional funding for working capital and lack of alternative options, BenneFin is emerging as a practical and regulated solution.

Founded by Bahrain resident Ms. Babita George who is an ex-banker, the company was born out of profound insight into the struggles faced by SMEs in the region, in accessing working capital.

"The funding gap seen in SMEs presented not just a challenge but an opportunity to work with the community to facilitate financial inclusion," Ms. George says.

"We had worked extensively with SMEs in the region and saw how difficult it was for them to raise working capital," Ms. George explains. "These businesses are often too large to rely on personal networks; yet too small for steady funding from banks. That's how BenneFin evolved - to bridge this gap with a regulated platform designed to serve their needs."

Meeting the Needs of SMEs

BenneFin's approach is simple yet impactful - providing receivables-backed and gold-backed loans tailored to the specific requirements of SMEs. By offering flexible financing structures, the company ensures businesses can access funds quickly and efficiently.

This agility, Ms. George says, is what sets BenneFin apart in the funding landscape.

The company's proprietary loan management system is a key enabler of this efficiency.

The platform streamlines everything from application to approval, making the process seamless for users.

As a part of advancing the future of digital funding, BenneFin is incorporating AI-driven decision making in its lending platform.

"Our platform is designed to be user-friendly," Ms. George says. "We're continuously enhancing it to provide a better experience for SMEs, and with AI, we're looking at faster and more scalable solutions."

The types of loans are designed to align with the cash flow of the Businesses and loans like Gold loan provide stress-free and secured financial solution, to both borrowers and investors.

Overcoming Barriers

Despite innovative approaches, lending to SMEs are subject to challenges. Many SMEs remain unfamiliar with alternative financing options, as financial inclusion in the region is developing.

"Awareness is one of the biggest hurdles," Ms. George, who is also the CEO, admits. "Reaching lendable SMEs and educating them about our solutions takes time, but we're addressing this through clear communication and transparent processes."

The company has designed its loan application process in simple three-step system - registration, KYC, and loan requests - businesses can access funds without unnecessary delays.

Whether for invoice-backed loans, POS machine loans, or Gold-backed loans, the focus remains on simplicity and efficiency.

As a Central Bank of Bahrain-regulated entity, BenneFin adheres strictly to financial regulations, including anti-money laundering (AML) and consumer protection laws.

In BenneFin, compliance isn't just a legal requirement; it is considered as a cornerstone of trust.

"We strive to ensure transparent and ethical lending practices at every stage," she emphasises.

A Vision Beyond Bahrain

While headquartered and firmly rooted in the Kingdom of Bahrain, BenneFin has its sights set on the wider GCC market. There is significant demand for SME financing across the region and the company's model is designed to address it.

"Our goal is to expand into other GCC markets and introduce financial products that meet the evolving needs of businesses," she reveals.

Bahrain's fintech sector has grown rapidly in recent years, supported by an ecosystem that encourages innovation.

BenneFin envisions itself to play a significant role in this transformation, particularly in line with Bahrain's Vision 2030, which aims to build a sustainable, inclusive economy.

"Fintech is becoming central to Bahrain's digital economy, and we're proud to be part of this evolution," she says. "Our mission is to empower SMEs by giving them the working capital they need to grow and succeed."

Supporting SMEs, Shaping the Future

For SMEs in Bahrain, BenneFin represents more than just a source of funding. It's a partner in growth, offering solutions tailored to their unique challenges.

Ms. George emphasised: "There are opportunities out there to grow your business, and we're here to help you seize them. With the right support, SMEs can grow and prosper."

As BenneFin continues to innovate and expand, being part of the fintech ecosystem in Bahrain, it's helping to build a thriving SME sector that will be integral to the Kingdom's economic success.

A game-changer

Shura Council members present innovative sports fund plan to boost athletic ambitions

Mohammed Darwish
TDT | Manama

A proposal to create a Sports Support Fund, designed to fuel Bahrain's athletic ambitions through donations and sponsorships, has been presented by members of the Shura Council.

The initiative seeks to establish a financially independent entity to strengthen the sports sector without drawing on the state's budget.

Bahrain's impressive performance at the 2024 Paris Olympics — where athletes won two gold medals, a silver, and a bronze — forms the backdrop to the proposal.

"Our young athletes are Bahrain's greatest asset, deserving the care and resources to achieve even greater heights," the explanatory memorandum reads.

The fund would be overseen by the General Sports Authority and managed by a board chaired by its leader, with members appointed by the Supreme Council for Youth and Sports.

Image used for illustrative purposes only

Its role would be to support sports projects, back private initiatives, and encourage closer collaboration between public and private sectors to strengthen the country's athletic framework.

Drawing on international examples, the proposal outlines how similar funds have succeeded in boosting sports performance abroad.

The Bahrain fund would rely on donations and sponsorship deals to maintain financial independence, with strict rules ensuring funds are used as intended.

Any misuse would be treated as a criminal offence under existing laws.

Authority

The fund would also have the authority to create commercial companies, adding another source of income.

In the event of its closure, all remaining assets would transfer to the General Sports Authority.

The proposed law includes 19 articles detailing the fund's framework, governance, and operations.

The Bahrain fund would bank on donations and sponsorship deals to maintain financial independence, with strict rules ensuring they are used as intended.

It also ensures that its employees would fall under Bahrain's Civil Service Law and Government Pensions Law.

Proposers Redha Munfaradi, Dalal Al Zayed, Ali Abdullah Al Aradi, Hesham Al Qassab, and Ali Al Shihabi have urged timely consideration of the draft.

They believe it offers a pragmatic way to build on Bahrain's recent sporting successes while providing a firm foundation for future achievements.

US unveils fresh export curbs targeting China's chip sector

Washington, United States

The United States announced new export restrictions Monday targeting China's ability to make advanced semiconductors, drawing swift condemnation from Beijing as competition deepens between the world's two biggest economies.

The moves step up US efforts to tighten curbs on exports of state-of-the-art chips to China, aiming to hinder the country's ability to make chips that can be used in advanced weapons systems and in artificial intelligence.

The announcement comes weeks before President-elect Donald Trump returns to the White House, where he is expected to advance Washington's hawkish stance on China.

"The United States has taken significant steps to protect our technology from being used by our adversaries in ways that threaten our national security," said National Security Advisor Jake Sullivan in a statement.

He added that Washington will keep working with allies and partners "to proactively and aggressively safeguard our world-leading technologies and know-how so they aren't used to undermine our national security."

Beijing vowed Monday to defend its interests, with a Chinese commerce ministry spokesperson saying the United States "abuses export control measures" and has "hindered normal economic and trade exchanges."

The latest US rules include a restriction of exports to 140 companies, including Chinese chip firms Piotech and SiCarrier Technology. They also impact Naura Technology Group, which makes chip production equipment, according to the Commerce Department.

Others include entities in Japan, South Korea and Singapore.

Being added to the "entity list" restricts US suppliers from exporting to them without additional permission.

The new US rules also include controls on two dozen types of chipmaking equipment and three kinds of software tools for developing or producing semiconductors.

"We are constantly talking to our allies and partners as well as reassessing and updating our controls," noted Under Secretary of Commerce for industry and security Alan Estevez.

Military focus

The efforts further a policy beginning under Trump's first administration, to hold back Beijing's ability to gain ground and become a leading tech economy.

On Monday, Commerce Secretary Gina Raimondo stressed that President Joe Biden's government has been especially tough in "strategically addressing China's military modernization through export controls."

"The semiconductor manufacturing equipment controlled by today's rules is needed to produce advanced-node integrated circuits, which are necessary for advanced weapon systems and advanced AI used in military applications," the Commerce Department said.

It added that overall, the actions are to slow China's development of advanced AI that could "change the future of warfare," and impair China's development of its own semiconductor ecosystem.

But the department maintained that this is in line with Washington's "small yard, high fence" strategy -- an approach that Chinese President Xi Jinping last month urged against.

Calls to further close the semiconductor supply chain have grown since the world became increasingly aware of the powers of AI, with the launch of ChatGPT.

An interesting fact about semiconductors is that their conductivity can be precisely controlled by adding small amounts of other elements, a process known as doping. By introducing impurities like phosphorus or boron into silicon, the material's electrical properties are altered, allowing it to function as both a conductor and an insulator depending on the need. This unique ability is what makes semiconductors the backbone of modern electronics, powering everything from smartphones to computers and even solar panels!

The competition -- widely seen as Russia's response to being banned from the Paris Olympics due to its Ukraine offensive -- were meant to take place in Yekaterinburg this September but in the summer postponed until an unspecified date in 2025. The decree Monday said that the World Friendship Games were postponed "until a special decision" by the Russian president. The International Olympic Committee (IOC) had called the Friendship games a "cynical attempt to politicise sport" and called on countries not to participate.

But he was forced into making a new apology on Monday for his remarks. The furore is the latest scandal to hit the taxpayer-funded British broadcaster. Another prime-time show, "Strictly Come Dancing", was thrown into crisis this year amid bullying accusations. # UN chief says situation in Gaza 'appalling and apocalyptic'

United Nations Secretary-General Antonio Guterres

Palestinians inspect the destruction at the site of an Israeli strike that targeted a house in the Bureij refugee camp in the central Gaza Strip

The United Nations chief said yesterday the situation in war-torn Gaza was "appalling and apocalyptic", warning conditions faced by Palestinians in the territory may amount to the "gravest international crimes".

In remarks read out on his behalf at a Cairo conference aimed at increasing humanitarian aid, UN Secretary-General Antonio Guterres urged the international community to "build a foundation for sustainable peace in Gaza and across the Middle East". The war in Gaza broke out when Palestinian group Hamas attacked southern Israel on October 7, 2023, resulting in 1,208 deaths, mostly civilians, according to an AFP tally of Israeli official figures. Israel's retaliatory campaign has killed 44,429 people in Gaza, according to figures from the territory's health ministry that the UN considers reliable. Guterres highlighted the devastating toll of the conflict and the urgent need for international action. "Malnutrition is rampant... Famine is imminent. Meanwhile, the health system has collapsed," he said. The UN chief added that Gaza now has "the highest number of children amputees per capita anywhere in the world", with "many losing limbs and undergoing surgeries without even anaesthesia". The secretary-general also criticised the severe restrictions on aid delivery, calling the current levels "grossly insufficient". According to the UN Palestinian refugee agency (UNRWA) count, only 65 aid trucks per day had been able to enter Gaza this past month, compared to a pre-war average of 500.

International aid organisations have repeatedly raised alarm over the deteriorating conditions in Gaza, warning that civilians are on the brink of famine. They have said aid shipments reaching the enclave are now at their lowest since the start of the war.

Israel, which early in the conflict imposed a complete siege for a period on the Hamas-ruled territory, has blamed aid issues on what it says is the inability of relief organisations to handle and distribute large quantities of aid. UN's Guterres said on Monday that the blockade of aid to Gaza "is not a crisis of logistics" but rather "a crisis of political will and of respect for fundamental principles of international humanitarian law".

UNRWA said all the attempts it has made to deliver aid into northern Gaza have either been "denied" or "impeded" between October 6, 2024 and November 25, amid fierce fighting in the area. Guterres said "if UNRWA is forced to close, the responsibility of replacing its vital services ... would rest with Israel". In his speech at the conference, UNRWA chief Philippe Lazzarini said that the agency "remains the backbone of humanitarian response" in Gaza.

He also called for the use of "a robust international legal and political framework" to ensure the continuation of humanitarian aid to Gaza. "Without this, humanitarians, however selfless and courageous, cannot stay and deliver," he added.

Hamas says delegation discussed Gaza truce with Egypt

AFP | Cairo, Egypt

A Hamas delegation discussed a ceasefire in Gaza with Egyptian intelligence officials, two officials from the Palestinian Islamist group told AFP on Monday.

The "delegation met with the head of the Egyptian general intelligence, Major General Hassan Rashad, and a number of Egyptian intelligence officials, and discussed ways to stop the war and aggression, bring in aid, and open the Rafah crossing" at Gaza's border with Egypt, said a senior Hamas official who was part of the Cairo meeting on Sunday evening. A second Hamas official also present in Cairo told AFP that "Egypt, Qatar and Turkey are making great efforts to reach an agreement for a ceasefire and prisoner exchange".

"Our Palestinian people are waiting for American and international pressure on (Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin) Netanyahu to stop the war and reach an agreement as happened in Lebanon," the official said.

Saudi prince discusses 'new crises' in long-awaited UAE visit

bu Dhabi Deputy Ruler Tahnoun bin Zayed Al Nahyan welcoming Saudi's Crown Prince Mohamed Bin Salman at the Al-Ain airport in Abu Dhabi Dubai, United Arab Emirates

Saudi Arabia's Crown Prince discussed "new crises" in the Middle East with the UAE's president during his first visit to the country in three years, Emirati media said.

Crown Prince Mohammed bin Salman and UAE leader Sheikh Mohamed bin Zayed Al Nahyan met on Sunday in Al Ain, a former oasis on the Omani border, hours after a Gulf Cooperation Council summit in Kuwait. The trip, termed a "private visit" by Saudi official media, took place after Syrian rebels seized control of Aleppo, the country's second biggest city, in a shock offensive.

The two royals "reviewed the latest regional and international developments, with a particular focus on the Middle East", the UAE's official WAM news agency said. "They underscored the need for concerted efforts to maintain regional stability and prevent the region descending into new crises that could threaten its security."

According to Emirati media, it was Prince Mohammed's first time in the neighbouring country and fellow oil power since a state visit in 2021. Prince Mohammed, often known as "MBS", and Sheikh Mohamed, or "MBZ", also met in the eastern Saudi city of Dammam in May.

'Stampedes' kill 56 at Guinea football match: govt

AFP | Conakry, Guinea

Stampedes at a football match killed 56 people in Guinea's second-largest city of N'Zerekore, the junta-controlled government said Monday. "Protests of dissatisfaction with refereeing decisions led to stone-throwing by supporters, resulting in fatal stampedes" at Sunday's match, the government statement said, which was published as a news ticker on national television. "Hospital services have put the provisional death toll at 56," it added.

N'Zerekore", in a post on Facebook. "The government is following the situation and reiterates its call for calm so as not to impede hospital services from aiding the injured," he added.

Local media said the match in the southeastern city was part of a tournament organised in honour of Guinea's junta leader, Mamady Doumbouya, who seized power in a 2021 coup and has installed himself as president. Such tournaments have become common in the West African nation as Doumbouya eyes a potential run in presidential elections expected next year and political alliances form.

Sweet-toothed bear lured out of Japanese supermarket

AFP | Tokyo, Japan

A bear that rampaged through a Japanese supermarket for two days was lured out with food coated in honey, trapped and due to be killed on Monday, local officials said. Japan has a growing problem with bears, with a record six human fatalities from attacks and more than 9,000 of the animals killed in the previous fiscal year.

"will take at least a week to heal once his stitches get removed, according to a doctor", a police spokesman told AFP. The supermarket was evacuated with the animal left inside, where it laid waste to the meat department, according to the Asahi Shimbun daily.

Finally early Monday, the bear walked into a trap containing "rice bran, bananas, apples, and bread, all coated with honey", an Akita official told AFP. "We prepared two traps, and one of them captured the bear on the backyard side of the supermarket," he said. The animal was due to be killed later Monday, the police spokesman said.

In the latest incident, police received an emergency call early Saturday that a bear had wounded a 47-year-old man in a supermarket in Akita, on Japan's main island of Honshu. A gash on the man's head offensive in the neighbouring country by Islamist-led insurgents. The lightning offensive by Islamist Hayat Tahrir al-Sham (HTS) group and allied factions saw government forces lose full control of Syria's second city Aleppo for the first time since the civil war began in 2011. The attacks have caused unease in Iraq, which still bears the scars of decades of conflict, including the rise of jihadists from the Islamic State (IS) group.

"Any infiltration on the Syrian-Iraqi border is absolutely impossible, because of the fortifications and the combat units located there," interior ministry spokesman General Moqdad Miri said on Monday. The defence ministry said "armoured units of the Iraqi army" were sent to reinforce the border, from the western border town of Al-Qaim to the border with Jordan further south.

Brain stimulation can help injured people walk

AFP | Paris, France

Scientists said yesterday that electrically stimulating a particular region in the brain could help people with injured spinal cords walk more easily, with one patient describing how the technique allowed him to conquer his fear of stairs. The new technique is intended for people with spinal cord injuries where the connection between their brain and spinal cord has not been totally severed, and who still have some movement in their legs. Wolfgang Jaeger, one of two patients who took part in an early trial, said that it immediately made a "big difference" to his mobility. "Now when I see a staircase with just a few steps, I know I can handle it on my own," the 54-year-old said in a video released alongside a new study in the journal Nature Medicine.

The research was conducted by a Swiss team that has pioneered several recent advances, including using electrical stimulation of the spinal cord to let several paralysed patients walk again. This time around, the researchers wanted to figure out which region of the brain was most responsible for people recovering from spinal cord injuries.

'I feel the urge to walk'

Using 3D imaging techniques to map out the brain activity of mice with these injuries, the team created what they called a "brain-wide atlas". They were surprised to find that the brain region they were looking for was in the lateral hypothalamus, which is otherwise known as a regulator for arousal, feeding and motivation. A particular group of neurons in this region "appears to be involved in the recovery of walking after spinal cord injury," neuroscientist Gregoire Courtine at Switzerland's Ecole Polytechnique Federale de Lausanne told AFP. Next, the team sought to amplify the signal from these neurons using a procedure called deep brain stimulation, which is commonly used to treat movement problems in people with Parkinson's disease.

It involves a surgeon implanting electrodes in the brain region, which are connected to a device implanted in the patient's chest. When switched on, the device sends electrical pulses up to the brain. First, the team tested their theory on rats and mice, finding that it "immediately" improved walking, the study said. The first human participant of the 2022 Swiss trial was a woman who, like Jaeger, has an incomplete spinal cord injury. More research is still needed -- and this technique will not be effective for all patients, Courtine emphasised.

Because it depends on boosting the brain's signal to the spinal cord, it depends how much signal was getting through in the first place.

YOU KNOW WHAT

The brain has an incredible ability to reorganize itself through neuroplasticity. Brain stimulation, such as cognitive training or even electrical stimulation, can help strengthen neural connections and promote recovery from injuries or conditions like stroke.

Bahrain to Host 3rd Asian Youth Games in 2025

Hussain Almaskati
TDT | Manama

Bahrain will host the 3rd Asian Youth Games in 2025, the Olympic Council of Asia (OCA) confirmed yesterday. The decision was made during the OCA's Executive Board meeting, following the cancellation of the event in Tashkent, Uzbekistan.

The Games, originally scheduled to take place at Tashkent's newly constructed Olympic Village, faced delays attributed to logistical and organizational hurdles. In a move to preserve the competition's timeline, Bahrain has stepped in, leveraging its robust infrastructure and experience in hosting international sporting events.

The event will bring together young athletes from across

Asia, offering a platform to compete in a variety of disciplines. Bahrain, known for its investment in grassroots sports, will use the opportunity to showcase its rising talent, aligning with its broader vision of promoting youth athletics on the international stage.

Preparations for the Games are already underway, with officials expressing confidence in Bahrain's ability to deliver an unforgettable experience.

India's Bumrah 'one of greatest fast bowlers ever': Australia's Head

Sydney, Australia

India's Jasprit Bumrah will go down as "one of the greatest fast bowlers to play the game", Australia's Travis Head said on Monday, ahead of the day-night Test in Adelaide this week. Stand-in skipper Bumrah took eight wickets in the first Test to help the visitors to a crushing 295-run victory last week in Perth.

The 30-year-old is set to hand the captaincy back to regular skipper Rohit Sharma for the second Test starting on Friday.

Unburdened by leadership duties, Bumrah could be even more of a threat under lights with the pink ball.

"Jasprit is probably going to go down as one of the greatest fast bowlers to play the game," top-order batsman Head told reporters.

"We're finding that at the moment, how challenging he can be, and it's nice to play against that.

"It's going to be nice to look back at your career and tell the grandkids that you faced him, so it's not a bad series to play in with him.

BDF to host first GCC Military Shooting Championship

TDT | Manama
