Paris Hilton to release memoir

Bang Showbiz | Los Angeles

Paris Hilton is set to release a memoir. The 40-year-old businesswoman has reportedly sold the rights to a new memoir to HarperCollins imprint Dey Street Books, who are the same company that published Jessica Simpson's best-seller, 'Open Book', in March this year.

According to Page Six, Paris shopped the memoir via literature agent Albert Lee at UTA, and the upcoming publication was acquired by Dey Street's editorial director Carrie Thornton.

Dey Street describes Paris' memoir as "both searingly honest and deeply personal," and added, "Hilton will share the real Paris Hilton as her celebrity persona evolved".

A publishing insider reportedly told Page Six the former 'Simple Life' star is hoping her own memoir can capitalise on "the success of Jessica Simpson's book, and nostalgia for early 2000s-era pop culture".

As of the time of writing, there is no title for the book and there is no confirmed release date.

However, Paris could be set to go into further detail about her life as a pop culture icon after previously opening up in her YouTube documentary series, 'This Is Paris'.

In the series, the beauty discussed the alleged abuse she suffered while attending Provo Canyon School in Utah when she was 17, and later said her traumatic experiences at the school led her to film her infamous 2003 sex tape.

She explained: "That would never have happened if I hadn't gone to that school. I just feel when I got out of that school, I was so lost ... I never would have let someone like that in my life if I hadn't gone through such experiences. And therefore, I would have never put myself in that situation. But I just wanted love so bad. I didn't really know. I was so naive. And I trusted the wrong person. And that's something I'll regret for the rest of my life."

"I think when people see the film, they're going to see a completely different side. And, they're going to see I am human, and I do have feelings."

Paris also insisted she didn't speak about her time in the school for years, because she felt "so grateful and so happy to be free" that she "didn't want to bring it up".

Demi Lovato says being the 'breadwinner' changed family dynamic

Fox | Los Angeles

Demi Lovato's career in Hollywood started when the entertainer was a child.

The singer, who recently came out as non-binary and prefers they/them pronouns, first appeared on "Barney and Friends" and later worked on the Disney Channel show "Sonny with a Chance" and the Disney movie "Camp Rock."

Lovato told Drew Barrymore, also a former child star, on the "4D with Demi Lovato" podcast that being the "breadwinner" in the family made the dynamic hard.

"I noticed that when I came into the spotlight at a young age, and then was the breadwinner... there wasn't a dossier, there wasn't a manual for my parents to read and it say, 'Here's what to do to raise a child star,'" Lovato explained.

The 28-year-old said when their parents would try to discipline them, the reply would be: "I pay the bills."

"I cringe now when I think about that attitude," Lovato said.

Barrymore agreed that she also rebelled against being set boundaries. "I think it's the parent-child dynamic that gets completely reversed," she mused. "No wonder you won't take an order from an authority figure who's no longer an authority figure because you've now reduced them down with finances and responsibilities."

The talk show host, 46, said she now realizes as a parent to two daughters how important those boundaries are.

"When you're a parent, you try to compensate with so much love and you're almost afraid to get into the argument," Barrymore said. "So you let things slide and then you're like, 'Oh, there should've been a boundary in that place probably a while ago,' but I guess I'm only realizing that now."

Meanwhile, it was recently confirmed 27-year-old Ariana was walked down the aisle by both her parents, Joan Grande and Ed Butera, on her wedding day.

Vogue magazine, who published a number of photos from the wedding, revealed last month: "As the lyrics of 'Thank U, Next' predicted ('One day I'll walk down the aisle / Holding hands with my mama'), Ariana's mother, Joan Grande, gave her away, although in real life she did so alongside Ariana's father, Ed Butera, which was a personal high point and one of the most special moments for the bride.

"Dalton, wearing a Tom Ford suit, waited beneath flowers suspended from the ceiling. Then the couple said their vows, committing to happily ever after, in love forever."

According to the publication, Ariana and Dalton - who got engaged in December after just under a year of dating - "knew very early in the planning process" that they wanted to exchange their vows at their house.

Rachel Weisz 'missed' David Harbour's wedding news

Cover Media | Los Angeles

Rachel Weisz had no idea her Black Widow co-star David Harbour had married British popstar Lily Allen.

The Stranger Things actor tied the knot with British singer Lily Allen in a low-key Las Vegas wedding in September, and he recently reached out to Weisz for advice about kid-friendly places to check out with his new wife's two daughters, Ethel, nine, and Marnie, eight.

However, The Mummy star, who lives in Brooklyn with her husband Daniel Craig, their two-year-old daughter Ella, and her 15-year-old son Henry with her ex, Darren Aronofsky, was unaware of Harbour's recent change in relationship status, even though they've been in touch since.

Dwayne Johnson shows off the large fish he raises as a hobby

Fox | Los Angeles

Dwayne "The Rock" Johnson showed off the fish he's been raising while getting in some relaxation at his farm.

The actor took to Instagram on Wednesday to share that he's currently on vacation and taking in some nature. In a video post, he's standing outdoors near what appears to be a private pond while holding a large fish in his hands.

"I just want to show you guys really quickly," he told his followers. "I just hauled out this good, I would say six, seven, possibly eight-pounder. Look at the beautiful belly on this fish, beautiful colours too as well. This is one nice healthy fish."

He holds the fish directly to the camera and continues: "As you guys know I raise my largemouth bass, I raise my stripe bass, [and] my variety of sunfish. There's a few other species in here, too. I work very closely with a university biologist. We come out here and created a beautiful ecosystem out here for these fish. And we feed them - I feed these babies!"

With that, the "Hobbs & Shaw" actor gently released the animal back into the pond.

"So good to get away to my farm this past weekend to decompress, take mental inventory and of course - spend time with my babies," Johnson captioned the post.

He went on to list other species that he's been raising in the pond, including "largemouth bass, striped bass, trout, carp, sunfish etc."
