Germany rejects Amnesty's 'genocide' accusation against Israel

Berlin, Germany

The German government yesterday rejected Amnesty International's accusation that Israel is committing "genocide" against Palestinians in its military campaign in Gaza.

Asked for a response to Amnesty's report, German foreign ministry spokesman Sebastian Fischer told reporters: "The question of genocide presupposes a clear intention to eradicate an ethnic group. I still do not recognise any such clear intention and therefore I cannot share the conclusions of the report."

"We take the accusations in the report very seriously and are currently analysing them," he said.

"We have repeatedly urged the Israeli government to adjust its military operations in Gaza and better fulfil its obligations to protect civilians," Fischer said. "However it is still our opinion that Israel is acting in defence against Hamas which sparked this conflict with its terror attacks," he said.

Iran plans to 'significantly increase' enriched uranium production: IAEA

AFP | Vienna, Austria

Iran plans a major increase in the production rate of highly enriched uranium, the UN nuclear watchdog said yesterday in a confidential report.

An updated design of Iran's Fordo plant showed that the effect of the change "would be to significantly increase the rate of production of uranium enriched up to 60 percent", the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) report said.

Production will jump to more than 34 kilogrammes of highly enriched uranium per month, compared to 4.7 kilogrammes previously, added the report to the IAEA's board of governors.

HRH CP, PM inaugurates 20th IISS Manama Dialogue

In pictures, the inauguration of the 20th edition of the IISS Manama Dialogue security conference

TDT | Manama

His Royal Highness Prince Salman bin Hamad Al Khalifa, the Crown Prince, Deputy Supreme Commander of the Armed Forces and Prime Minister, yesterday opened the 20th edition of the IISS Manama Dialogue security conference, affirming commitment to regional and international security, peace, and development.

Bahrain, under the leadership of His Majesty King Hamad bin Isa Al Khalifa, the Supreme Commander of the Armed Forces, is committed to supporting regional and international security, peace, and development, HRH told the conference.

In this regard, HRH stressed the importance of collective efforts to strengthen regional and global security and stability, address emerging challenges, and achieve sustainable solutions that benefit all nations.

Further, HRH highlighted security as a cornerstone of sustainable development, emphasising its integral role in fostering regional and global stability.

HRH Prince Salman underscored the value of strategic partnerships and international forums in advancing peace, stating that platforms like the Manama Dialogue are vital for exchanging perspectives on pressing foreign policy and defence challenges.

Reflecting on the success of the Manama Dialogue over the past two decades, HRH Prince Salman praised its contributions to fostering collaboration and advancing global development goals.

The Crown Prince and Deputy Supreme Commander noted that this year's broad international participation demonstrates the forum's significance in addressing security challenges and promoting innovative strategies for regional stability.

The IISS Manama Dialogue is one of the most prominent security and defense conferences in the Middle East, held annually since 2004.

Iran launches heaviest space payload into orbit: media

AFP | Tehran, Iran

Iran launched yesterday its heaviest space payload, which includes a satellite and a space tug, using a domestically developed satellite carrier, official media reported.

Weighing 300 kilogrammes (660 pounds), the payload consisted of the Fakhr-1 telecommunications satellite and the Saman-1 space tug, according to state television.

The Saman-1 is an "orbital transmission system" designed to transport satellites from lower orbits to higher ones, as described by the Iran Space Research Center when it was unveiled in 2017.

The payloads were launched using the home-grown Simorgh satellite carrier from the Imam Khomeini launch base in Semnan province.

Named after a mythical Iranian bird, the Simorgh is a two-stage, liquid-fuelled satellite launch vehicle developed by Iran's defence ministry.

Qatar resumes Gaza mediation: source with knowledge of talks

AFP | Doha, Qatar

Qatar has resumed its role as a mediator in efforts to secure a truce in the Israel-Hamas war following a brief suspension, a source with knowledge of the talks said Thursday.

The Gulf emirate, along with the United States and Egypt, had been involved in months of unsuccessful negotiations for a Gaza truce and hostage release after nearly 14 months of war.

C-SIPA A Pillar for Stability and Prosperity: HRH CP, PM

Holds talks with top officials, ministers as part of 20th IISS Manama Dialogue

TDI | Manama

His Royal Highness Prince Salman bin Hamad Al Khalifa, Crown Prince, Deputy Supreme Commander of the Armed Forces, and Prime Minister, yesterday praised the Comprehensive Security Integration and Prosperity Agreement (C-SIPA) as a cornerstone for fostering regional stability and prosperity.

"C-SIPA represents a model for advancing an inclusive vision based on mutual respect and shared objectives," HRH stated during talks with Anne Neuberger, U.S. Deputy National Security Advisor for Cyber and Emerging Technologies, held on the sidelines of the 20th IISS Manama Dialogue.

HRH underscored that C-SIPA is not merely a bilateral arrangement but the founda-

"Through agreements like C-SIPA, we can envision a Middle East and a global community rooted in peace, economic development, and a rules-based international order that serves all people," he added.

The meeting was attended by senior Bahraini officials, including Shaikh Salman bin Khalifa Al Khalifa, Minister of Finance and National Economy, HE Lieutenant General Abdullah bin Hassan Al Nuaimi, Minister of Defence Affairs, and Lieutenant-General Theyab bin Saqr Al-Nuaimi, Chief of Staff of the Bahrain Defence Force.

Separately, HRH held talks with the Minister of Foreign Affairs of the Republic of Estonia, Margus Tsahkna, the Minister of Foreign Affairs of the Kingdom of Norway, Espen Barth Eide, the Minister of Defence of the Republic of Hungary, Kristof Szalay-Bobrovniczky, Minister of Foreign Affairs of the State of Kuwait, Abdullah Ali Al-Yahya, Minister of Foreign Affairs of the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia, His Highness Prince Faisal bin Farhan Al Saud and the Minister for Defence of the Republic of Singapore, Dr NG Eng Hen.

UK to join US-Bahrain Security Pact

TDI | Manama

The United Kingdom is set to join the US-led Comprehensive Security Integration and Prosperity Agreement (C-SIPA) with the Kingdom of Bahrain, following an invitation extended by Bahrain and the United States during the 20th IISS Manama Dialogue currently underway in Manama. The landmark trilateral initiative aims to enhance regional and global security through multilateral cooperation, mutual respect, and shared prosperity.

In his opening remarks, Bahrain's Foreign Minister, Dr. Abdullatif bin Rashid Alzayani, highlighted the pact as a key example of Bahrain's diplomatic approach to fostering stability. "C-SIPA is designed not as a bilateral arrangement but as a multilateral framework adaptable to evolving challenges," he said, underscoring Bahrain's vision for collective solutions to global tensions.

The dialogue also tackled pressing issues, with Bahrain advocating for immediate action in Gaza, including a ceasefire, the release of hostages, and humanitarian aid delivery. In Lebanon, the Kingdom called for adherence to UN Security Council Resolution 1701, urging respect for international law. For Syria, as chair of the Arab League, Bahrain pushed for a political solution preserving sovereignty and promoting regional reintegration.

"These issues, alongside other challenges, demand sustained engagement," Dr. Alzayani stated, reaffirming Bahrain's role as a mediator in fostering peace and stability.

Arab Summit Impact

Reflecting on the Kingdom's leadership during the 33rd Arab Summit, Dr. Alzayani highlighted the adoption of the "Manama Declaration," a roadmap for actionable outcomes. The declaration includes initiatives to improve healthcare, education, and innovation for communities affected by conflict and reaffirms a commitment to the two-state solution for the Israeli-Palestinian conflict.

"The declaration represents Bahrain's dedication to meaningful progress, not just symbolic gestures," he noted, expressing hope that the dialogue would amplify support for these goals.

Marking Milestones

The 20th Manama Dialogue coincides with the 25th anniversary of His Majesty King Hamad bin Isa Al Khalifa's accession, underscoring Bahrain's enduring commitment to dialogue and diplomacy. Dr. Alzayani credited His Majesty's leadership and the proactive efforts of His Royal Highness the Crown Prince and Prime Minister for elevating Bahrain's role on the international stage.

Call for Collaboration

As the dialogue continues, Dr. Alzayani encouraged active participation, stressing that collective action and innovative thinking are essential to address today's complex challenges. "Together, through dialogue and partnership, we can navigate these challenges and build a more secure, prosperous future for all," he concluded, setting an optimistic tone for the discussions ahead.

IISS committed to keep dialogue relevant: Dr. Giegerich

Ashen Tharaka
TDI | Manama

The 20th Manama Dialogue commenced with a keynote from Dr. Bastian Giegerich, Director-General of the International Institute for Strategic Studies (IISS), who lauded Bahrain's leadership in advancing peace and security. Dr. Giegerich recognised the silver jubilee of His Majesty King Hamad bin Isa Al Khalifa's accession as a testament to the Kingdom's steadfast commitment to diplomacy.

He also acknowledged the instrumental role of His Royal Highness the Crown Prince and Prime Minister in shaping the dialogue into a vital platform for regional and global cooperation, calling their vision the foundation of the event's success.

Strategic Reflection

Recalling last year's keynote by the Crown Prince, Dr. Giegerich emphasised its powerful call for a shift in regional narratives - moving away from political posturing and actions that undermine security, and instead embracing collaboration, honest dialogue, and the aspirations of the region's people.

"For two decades, the IISS Manama Dialogue has fostered dialogue and facilitated cooperation," Dr. Giegerich said, highlighting the forum's role in shaping decisions and encouraging reflection on critical challenges. He reaffirmed the IISS's commitment to keeping the dialogue relevant and engaging amid evolving regional dynamics.

Future Voices

This year's dialogue places special focus on young leaders, reflecting IISS's dedication to empowering the next generation of policymakers. Dr. Giegerich stressed the importance of their participation in crafting innovative strategies for the future.

Diplomats, military leaders, and experts to discuss regional issues

TDI | Manama

The much-anticipated Middle East Security Summit 2024 brings together top diplomats, military leaders, and experts to discuss key regional issues.

The event opens today with a welcome address by Dr. Bastian Giegerich, Director-General and Chief Executive of IISS, who will set the stage for the summit's discussions.

HH Prince Faisal

The summit will feature a Special Keynote Address by His Highness Prince Faisal bin Farhan Al Saud, Minister of Foreign Affairs of Saudi Arabia.

First Plenary Session: 20 Years of Dialogue

The summit's first plenary session, titled "20 Years of Dialogue," will be chaired by Dr. Giegerich and will feature Sir John Chipman, Executive Chairman of IISS. This session will reflect on two decades of regional diplomatic dialogue, assessing how partnerships have evolved and how regional and global powers have worked together to address Middle Eastern security concerns.

Political and Military Responses to Conflict

The summit's second plenary session will explore "Political and Military Responses to Conflict." Dr. Giegerich will chair the session, with speakers including Dr. Ng Eng Hen, Minister for Defence of Singapore, Ararat Mirzoyan, Minister of Foreign Affairs of Armenia, and General Walaa Adel Aboelfarag, Assistant Minister of Defence for Foreign Affairs in Egypt. The discussion will focus on how political and military responses have evolved in the face of ongoing regional conflicts and the need for multi-pronged strategies to ensure peace and security.

Private Ministerial Lunch

A private Ministerial Lunch will follow, providing an opportunity for delegates and ministers to engage in off-the-record discussions, fostering deeper cooperation and strategic planning.

Third Plenary Session: Initiatives for Regional Peace

The afternoon will continue with the third plenary sesion, "Initiatives for Regional Peace," chaired by Dr. Giegerich. The session will feature Sameh Shoukry, former Minister of Foreign Affairs of Egypt, and Sven Koopmans, Special Representative for the Middle East Peace Process at the European Union. The focus will be on current initiatives designed to promote peace in the region, emphasizing the importance of political cooperation and economic development as part of comprehensive peace-building efforts.

Fourth Plenary Session: International Approaches to Middle East Security

The final session of the day, "International Approaches to Middle East Security," will be chaired by Sir John Chipman and will include contributions from prominent leaders such as Dr. Tobias Lindner, Minister of State for Foreign Affairs in Germany, Hamish Falconer, Minister for the Middle East at the UK's Foreign, Commonwealth and Development Office, Nuh Yilmaz, Deputy Minister of Foreign Affairs of Turkey, and Anne Neuberger, Deputy National Security Advisor for Cyber and Emerging Technology at the U.S. National Security Council.

This session will address how international actors can collaborate on enhancing security in the Middle East, with a special focus on emerging threats like cyber security.

Work permits to get costly?

MPs debate higher expat work permit fees to boost local jobs

● MPs propose increasing work permit fees by 20% in the first year, 35% in the second, and 50% in the third.

● LMRA argues the plan is impractical due to fluctuating labour demands.

● BCCI warns the proposal could financially strain businesses.

Mohammed Darwish
TDT | Manama

Jobs for Bahrainis Parliamentarians are determined to leave no stone unturned on this path.

Now, they are adding yet another tool to make this battle more effective: higher work permit fees for expatriate workers.

The move forms part of enforcing 70% Bahrainisation rate in key job sectors.

Yes, you heard it right. The logic is that this would make hiring expatriates an expensive affair. Naturally, companies would be compelled to hire locally, thereby creating more opportunities for Bahraini citizens.

The proposal suggests that the fee will increase progressively—20 per cent in the first year, 35 per cent in the second, and 50 per cent in the third.

If the proposal, led by MP Dr Muneer Seroor, gains parliamentary approval this Tuesday, this will become a reality.

However, the draft has already attracted criticism.

LMRA opposes

One of the main criticisms is the Labour

Market Regulatory Authority (LMRA), which has expressed concerns about its feasibility.

Advocates argue that the change will reduce unemployment, but the LMRA sees it as highly impractical.

The main reason cited is the ever-changing demand patterns of the labour market.

According to the LMRA, it is not practical to link fee increases and Bahrainisation quotas to specific roles.

They also disagree with claims that the fee hike would improve household finances and boost spending power in the local economy.

Instead, the LMRA suggests a general rise in fees across all sectors, which it believes would be more effective and manageable.

Furthermore, the LMRA emphasises that Bahrainisation quotas are typically applied to business activities rather than individual job categories.

“Hence, the proposed 70% target is difficult to enforce,” the LMRA stressed.

Additionally, any changes should align with existing laws, including Article 42 of Law No. 19 of 2006, and the broader national employment strategy.

Dr Muneer Seroor

Despite these objections, the Services Committee has backed the proposal, citing the need to address unemployment among Bahrainis and reduce reliance on foreign workers.

BCCI has concerns

The Bahrain Chamber of Commerce and Industry (BCCI) believes that such a law would severely strain businesses financially.

The organisation has urged MPs to focus on broader and long-term strategies rather than implementing restrictive measures.

It has also called for a detailed review to ensure that the proposed measures do not harm the private sector or stifle economic growth.

As of recent estimates, expatriates make up approximately 80-90% of the workforce in many GCC countries, with the exact percentage varying by country and sector. For example:

UAE: Expatriates account for around 88% of the workforce.
Qatar: Expatriates represent about 85-90% of the workforce.
Saudi Arabia: The expatriate workforce is around 30-40%, with a significant presence in the private sector.
Kuwait: Approximately 70% of the workforce are expatriates.
Oman: Around 40-50% of the workforce are expatriates.

Wives' property won't harm husbands' housing rights, new proposal

Representative picture

Mohammed Darwish
TDT | Manama

A new proposal aiming to ensure that a wife's property ownership does not prevent her husband from accessing government housing is set for a parliamentary vote next Tuesday.

Critics warn that this change could create a dangerous precedent, potentially enabling families to exploit the system. The proposal, which has the backing of the Public Utilities and Environment Committee, challenges the current rule under Ministerial Decision No. 909 of 2015, which treats the financial resources of a husband and wife as a combined entity. This policy often results in husbands being disqualified from housing services.

The Ministry of Housing and Urban Planning, however, opposes the proposal, warning that separating financial responsibilities could lead to people transferring property ownership to spouses in order to gain unfair access to housing benefits. The ministry suggests instead revising existing regulations, such as the property size limits under Decision No. 90 of 2019, and taking into account the purpose of property ownership, such as whether it is used for business.

Despite these concerns, the committee firmly supports the proposal. They argue that, according to Islamic law, the husband is responsible for providing housing, irrespective of the wife's financial situation or property ownership. The committee also references Bahrain's existing laws, such as Law No. 32 of 2010, which excludes the wife's financial details from her husband's obligations, a precedent they believe should extend to housing policies.

On 26 October, the committee met with Minister of Housing and Urban Planning Amna Al Rumaihi and senior officials, including Engineer Asim Abdul Latif and Fatima Al Manai, to hear the ministry's concerns. Letters were also sent to the Supreme Council for Women and the Bahrain Women's Union, but no responses were received by the time the report was finalised.

Police traps barber behind 300-spot drug network in Kingdom

TDT | Manama

Drugs were sold across the Kingdom for just one dinar per drop-off.

The mastermind behind this dark trade was a man who worked as a barber during the day. Police said they arrested the man, who was running a 300-location drug network across Bahrain, based on a tip-off they received.

Cops said the man was selling drugs using a 'dead drop' technique, where narcotics were left in hidden spots for buyers to collect. He also had accomplices abroad.

The suspect was apprehended in his car in a residential area, appearing intoxicated.

Upon searching him, officers found two medium-sized bags of drugs and a glass bottle containing a suspicious liquid.

Further inspection of the car uncovered a trove of illegal items, including CBD narcotic liquid, herbal drugs, wraps, plastic bags containing white powders, a precision scale, adhesive tape, and a syringe bearing traces of drugs. Hidden in the boot was a box filled with more illegal substances.

Later, police discovered additional stashes of drugs and another precision scale tucked beneath his bed at his home.

During interrogation, the man confessed to stashing narcotics in around 300 locations across Bahrain, earning a dinar for each drop-off. As part of the arrangement, he also received partial rent payments and free narcotics for his own use.

Forensic analysis of his phone uncovered a series of conversations, including images and videos of drugs marked with specific symbols, as well as evidence of money transfers linked to the trade.

The Public Prosecution has charged the man with possession, sale, and use of illegal substances for both trafficking and personal use. The case will be heard in the First High Criminal Court on 10 December, with the accused remaining in custody until then.

Man gets a year in jail for theft and assault at electrical store

H Naser
TDT | Manama

A 40-year-old man has been convicted and sentenced by the High Criminal Court for theft and assault at an electrical goods store. The defendant was found guilty of stealing a power drill and assaulting a store employee who attempted to intervene.

According to the employee, the incident began when the defendant selected a power drill and attempted to leave without paying. When the employee confronted him, the defendant reacted aggressively, shouting and striking him on the head and neck. He also grabbed the employee's face, causing several injuries before fleeing the store with the stolen item.

The employee described the attack, stating, "I was just doing my job when I saw him trying to leave without paying. I didn't expect him to hit me." Security camera footage confirmed the employee's account, showing the defendant leaving with the drill while the employee pursued him. A medical report indicated that the employee suffered pain, swelling to his head, a cut lip, and scratches on his neck.

The Public Prosecution charged the defendant with theft by coercion and assault. The court found him guilty on both counts and sentenced him to one year in prison.

No room for runaways

MPs push for tougher penalties

● Vote set for next Tuesday

● LMRA' argues that runaway workers make up a small percentage of the workforce, citing 1.44% among housemaids in 2022

● Protection for Sponsors: Licensed hiring offices are required to replace fleeing workers, with the LMRA refunding sponsors if offices fail to do so

Mohammed Darwish
TDT | Manama

Enough is enough. MPs say they are determined to end the ongoing saga of runaway housemaids.

They are preparing stringent measures to tackle the issue, which will be put to a crucial vote in parliament next Tuesday.

Lawmakers are calling for tougher penalties and public warnings, urging locals not to hire runaway workers, as doing so exacerbates the problem.

The justification for these measures is clear: rogue workers are driving local families into debt and legal battles.

This push for stronger laws is part of a proposal laid out by MP Ahmed Abdulwahid Qarata, with the support of Hanan Al Fardan, Hassan Ibrahim Hassan, Abdulla Al Dhaen, and Hamad Al Doy. Their proposal highlights a steady rise in walkouts, leaving sponsors vulnerable. They argue that ordinary Bahraini families, already under financial strain, need protection from this growing issue. According to the LMRA, in 2022, out of 483,549 lawful permits in the commercial sector, only 1,070 workers fled—about 0.18%. Among household help, 874 out of 73,209 left, around 1.44%. The worst recorded figure was in 2019, when 2.28% of housemaids fled.

However, they face stiff opposition from the Labour Market Regulatory Authority (LMRA), which argues that runaway workers make up only a tiny fraction of the workforce.

According to the LMRA, in 2022, out of 483,549 lawful permits in the commercial sector, only 1,070 workers fled—about 0.18%. Among household help, 874 out of 73,209 left, around 1.44%. The worst recorded figure was in 2019, when 2.28% of housemaids fled.

The LMRA attributes these incidents to unpaid wages, poor accommodation, inadequate rest, and mistreatment.

When a runaway is reported, the LMRA cancels the permit. Commercial employers have 30 days to file claims, while those with housemaids have only five. Once confirmed, the runaway is blacklisted, preventing future employment.

Licensed hiring offices are required to assist sponsors by ensuring workers are not exploited by shady middlemen. These offices must replace any worker who flees during the trial period, or the LMRA will refund the sponsor from the office's deposit. Critics argue that this approach is too lenient, as Bahraini families bear the financial burden each time a worker runs away, leaving behind debts and broken agreements.

Despite the criticism, the LMRA acknowledges the difficulty of overseeing housemaids, as many work behind closed doors and routine checks are prohibited by law. The LMRA urges the public to avoid hiring runaways, warning that doing so is against Bahraini law. It collaborates with foreign embassies to ensure proper hiring procedures and compliance.

Meanwhile, MPs remain steadfast, insisting that the time for half-measures has passed.

Man's worst fears confirmed after DNA test

H Naser
TDT | Manama

The man, who had suspected for years that one of his children was not his, had his worst fears confirmed when the appeals court authorised a DNA test.

For 10 years, he believed the child to be his, but after the couple's divorce in 2023, he questioned the paternity of one of their two children.

The couple had married in 2012 and had two children during their marriage. After the divorce, the man took the matter to court, claiming that one of the children was not biologically his. The court, however, rejected his argument and denied his request to have his name removed from the child's passport and other legal documents.

Despite the setback, the man decided to appeal the case to the High Shariat Appeals Court, where judges authorised a DNA test. The test results revealed a mismatch, confirming that the man was not the biological father, while affirming the mother's biological relationship to the child, according to lawyer Musa Adnan.

The court ruled to deny paternity to the claimant, nullifying all legal consequences of the previous paternity attribution. Additionally, the court ordered the removal of the man's name from all official documents related to the child.

Proposal for women's-only college faces strong opposition

H Naser
TDT | Manama

A parliamentary proposal to establish a women's-only college at the University of Bahrain has been met with resistance from the Ministry of Education, the Supreme Council for Women, and the Bahrain Women's Union.

MPs Bader Al Tamimi, Hamad Al Doy, Mohammed Al Ahmed, Jameel Mullah Hassan, and Mohammed Al Rifai argued that a gender-exclusive institution could provide a more comfortable environment for female students, enhancing academic performance.

The Ministry of Education

rejected the proposal, citing low enrollment in some programmes and the potential conflict with the university's plans to expand its offerings. It emphasized that co-educational systems foster better learning outcomes through interaction and competition, recommending the Royal University for Women as an alternative for students seeking single-gender education.

The Supreme Council for Women pointed to the strong academic performance of Bahraini women, who made up 59% of undergraduates and 63% of graduates in 2022, arguing that the existing system does not hinder female success.

The Bahrain Women's Union also opposed the idea, stating it would promote segregation, restrict career options, and contradict Bahrain's commitments under international agreements like CEDAW. They emphasized the alignment of co-education with national strategies for women's empowerment.

The proposal is set to spark further debate in the parliament.

Police dismantle family-run human trafficking ring: Four Asians, including woman, arrested

H Naser
TDT | Manama

A human trafficking ring, which exploited women with fake job offers and forced them into prostitution, has been dismantled, with four suspects, including one woman, sentenced to prison by Bahrain's High Criminal Court. The group, all Asian nationals, lured women into the Kingdom with promises of legitimate work, only to trap them in a nightmare of exploitation.

The investigation revealed a chilling operation orchestrated by the first defendant, a woman who used her network of family and friends to control and manipulate the victims. She hired the second defendant, her friend, to act as a guard for the women; the third defendant, her friend's son, was tasked with transporting the victims between different locations; and the fourth defendant, her brother, was responsible for cooking and selling food to the women, keeping them in captivity.

Human trafficking involves the use of force, fraud, or coercion to obtain some type of labor or commercial sex act. Every year, millions of men, women, and children are trafficked worldwide - including right here in the United States. It can happen in any community and victims can be any age, race, gender, or nationality.

In a landmark ruling, the first and second defendants were sentenced to five years in prison, a BD 3,000 fine, and deportation after their sentences are served. The third and fourth defendants were handed three-year sentences and a BD 2,000 fine each, with deportation to follow. All four were also ordered to pay for the repatriation of the victims.

The case began when one of the victims, a young woman, came across an enticing Facebook ad offering a job as a massage therapist in Bahrain. Desperate for work, she responded and travelled to the Kingdom, only to find herself trapped in a grim reality. Upon arrival, she was taken to a residential building, where the third defendant confiscated her passport and locked her in a room with other women from her home country. "They told us we had to accept customers," the victim recalled. "If we refused, they threatened to charge us for the recruitment and travel costs. We were trapped."

The women endured constant abuse and threats until one managed to escape and contact her embassy. In a coordinated effort with the Anti-Human Trafficking Department, female police officers tracked down and arrested the suspects.

The authorities uncovered a horrific web of manipulation, control, and exploitation, leading to charges of human trafficking, illegal transportation and housing of the victims, and forcing them into prostitution under duress. The Public Prosecution has vowed to continue cracking down on such operations to protect vulnerable individuals from being preyed upon.

This case serves as a stark reminder of the dark underbelly of human trafficking, and the determination of Bahrain's law enforcement to fight against this pervasive crime. The defendants are now facing the consequences of their actions, with the full weight of the law bringing justice to those they victimized.

MPs push for Union and Sports Federation Audits despite Government opposition

● MPs are pressing ahead with a proposal to audit unions and sports federations, despite government opposition, citing potential conflicts with legal and international standards.

Despite government opposition, MPs are pushing forward with plans to debate a proposal on auditing unions and sports federations on Tuesday.

The government has rejected the bill, arguing it blurs the disinction between public and private funds, which could violate legal and international standards. Supporters of the proposal argue that it would enhance financial accountability, while the government maintains that existing laws, such as Article 22 bis of the Associations Law, already provide adequate oversight without infringing on organisational autonomy.

The bill, referred to the Financial and Economic Affairs Committee by Speaker Ahmed bin Salman Al Musallam in September, has sparked significant debate among lawmakers, unions, and officials.

The core issue revolves around the nature of the funds managed by these organisations. The government maintains that these funds—sourced from member fees, donations, and international grants—are private, not public, and thus not subject to state oversight. According to current laws, the National Audit Office (NAO) is only empowered to oversee public funds managed by state-linked entities, leaving unions and federations outside its jurisdiction.

For sports federations, the government points out their private status as public-benefit entities. These federations are already held accountable to Bahrain's Olympic Committee, which enforces financial and administrative rules in accordance with the Olympic Charter. Officials warn that expanding state oversight could put Bahrain in conflict with international agreements, potentially leading to penalties such as exclusion from global sporting events.

Similarly, labour unions are governed by their own laws, which safeguard their financial independence. The government notes that unions' funds come from member contributions, approved donations, and activity revenues, not public money. Therefore, they argue, the NAO should not be involved in their financial oversight.

Supporters of the bill assert that it would improve transparency and accountability. However, the government insists that existing laws are sufficient, particularly Article 22 bis of the 1989 Associations Law, which allows ministers to request financial audits of private organisations without undermining their independence.

For sports federations, the international stakes are high. The Bahrain Olympic Committee's rules already ensure compliance with global standards, and any government interference could disrupt this balance, with serious consequences for Bahrain's participation in international sporting events.

An audit is a systematic examination and evaluation of an organization's financial records, systems, and processes to ensure accuracy, compliance with laws, and the effectiveness of financial management. Audits can be conducted internally by the organization's own staff or externally by independent auditors. They help identify discrepancies, prevent fraud, and improve the overall financial health of an organization.

New regulations urged to fix gaps in bankruptcy law

MPs are calling for better execution and implementation of the Restructuring and Bankruptcy Law, urging the government to issue new regulations.

The proposal, supported by the Parliament's Financial and Economic Affairs Committee, was put forward by MPs Ahmed Qarata, Abdullah Al Dhaen, Mohammed Al Rifai, Bader Al Tamimi, and Hamad Al Doy. It addresses issues stemming from the inconsistent application and understanding of the current law.

According to the MPs, the existing situation has led to unresolved business debts, numerous court cases, and negative impacts on the Kingdom's economy. The proposed new regulations aim to ensure consistent application of the law, stabilise commercial transactions, and maintain trust among businesses.

The Ministry of Works in Bahrain has processed 1,760 compensation claims for damages caused by recent heavy rains, with 561 claims approved and compensation disbursed, according to Minister Ibrahim Hassan Al Hawaj.

The remaining claims are still under review, with some delayed due to incomplete documentation.

In response to a parliamentary inquiry from MP Mohammed Maarefi, the Minister outlined the types of damages reported, including damage to furniture, electrical appliances, and building structures. Eligibility for compensation is based on whether the damage was caused by rainwater accumulation or sewage backups due to Ministry projects. Claims involving damage from direct rainfall, such as leaks through roofs or windows, are not eligible.

A damage assessment committee evaluates claims based on site visits and the extent of the damage, with compensation varying depending on location and property contents. The Ministry is working with the Capital Municipality and municipal councils to expedite the process and assist citizens in submitting complete information.

Japan solid-fuel rocket launch pushed back after fire
 Japan's space agency has said its plan to launch a solid-fuel rocket by the end of March is now impossible, after a recent engine test resulted in a large fire. Towering flames and white fumes engulfed an Epsilon S rocket of the Japan Aerospace Exploration Agency (JAXA) during a failed combustion test in southern Japan last month. The compact rocket is being developed to carry satellites into orbit and JAXA says on its website it is "designed to lower the threshold to space".

Europe's new Vega-C rocket launches Thursday from French Guiana and put a satellite into orbit in its first takeoff since a failed flight two years ago. After two days of delays, the rocket -- crucial to Europe's autonomy in reaching space -- took off without problems, carrying the Sentinel-1C satellite for the European Union's Copernicus Earth observation programme. The satellite, which provides data and services for observing the planet in order to understand climate change impacts, was put into orbit at an altitude of around 700 kilometres (435 miles), 1 hour and 43 minutes after lift-off, to thunderous applause from the Jupiter control centre.

Putin appoints new governor to manage Kursk crisis
 President Vladimir Putin has replaced the governor of the Kursk region -- partly controlled by Ukraine -- saying it needs a "crisis" manager, after residents voiced anger at the handling of the incursion. Ukrainian troops launched a shock offensive into Kursk in August, forcing thousands to flee border areas. Ukraine's army said in November it controls 800 square kilometres (310 square miles) of territory in the region. Putin appointed Alexander Khinshin -- a prominent pro-Kremlin lawmaker -- as acting Kursk governor late on Thursday.

NASA delays crewed lunar landing to 2027

A person is seen in an unpressurized mockup spacesuit used for moonwalk tests during a media event for NASA's Joint EVA and Human Surface Mobility Test Team Field Test 5 (JETT5) to practice moonwalking operations for the Artemis lunar missions

AFP | London
 The United States is delaying its planned return to the Moon from 2026 to "mid-2027" citing heat shield issues and other problems plaguing its Orion crew capsule, NASA officials said Thursday. The announcement comes as President-elect Donald Trump prepares to take office in January and could significantly reshape the direction of the US space agency. Artemis, named after Apollo's twin sister in Greek mythology, was unveiled in 2017 as NASA's ambitious program to establish a long-term presence on the Moon and apply those lessons to eventual Mars missions. Its first mission, Artemis 1, was an uncrewed test flight to the Moon and back in 2022 after multiple delays. But teams reviewing the data later learned that Orion's heat shield eroded in unexpected ways, and there were also issues with its electrical and life support systems. "We were able to recreate the problem here on Earth, and now we know the root cause, and this has allowed us to devise a path forward," NASA Administrator Bill Nelson told reporters during a press conference. The problems have pushed back the entire Artemis timeline. Artemis 2, a crewed lunar flyby, has been delayed from September 2025 to April 2026. Artemis 3, intended to see the first woman and first person of color set foot on the Moon's ice-rich south pole, is now slated for "mid-2027." "That will be well ahead of the Chinese government's announced intention that they have already publicly stated of 2030," added Nelson. "The safety of our astronauts is always first in our decisions. It is our North Star. We do not fly until we are ready."

Rebel advance threatens regime

Syrian rebel forces aim to topple Assad's regime in strategic advance

This aerial picture shows the municipality building in Syria's city of Hama after anti government fighters captured the city

- Rebels led by HTS seize Aleppo, Hama; target Homs next
- Homs' capture could isolate Damascus from Assad's coastal power base
- Thousands flee Homs amid escalating sectarian fears

AFP | Beirut

Rebel forces pressing a lightning offensive in Syria aim to overthrow President Bashar al-Assad's rule, their Islamist leader said in an interview published yesterday. After wresting other key cities from government control, the rebels were at the gates of Syria's Homs, a war monitor said, though the defence ministry denied claims it had withdrawn its troops. In little over a week, the offensive has seen Syria's second city Aleppo and strategically located Hama fall from Assad's control, for the first time since the civil war began in 2011.

Should the rebels capture Homs, that would cut the seat of power in the capital Damascus from the Mediterranean coast, a key bastion of the Assad clan, which has ruled Syria for the past five decades. "When we talk about objectives, the goal of the revolution remains the overthrow of this regime. It is our right to use all available means to achieve that goal," Jolani told CNN in an interview. The rebel alliance conducting the offensive that began on November 27 is led by HTS, which is rooted in the Syrian branch of Al-Qaeda but has sought to soften its image in recent years. According to the Observatory, Syrian troops and Iran-backed forces "suddenly" withdrew from Deir Ezzor in the east and headed towards central Syria where Homs is located. The Observatory later said the army had withdrawn from Homs city towards its outskirts, and rebel military commander Hassan Abdel Ghani said armed forces were "collapsing as they fled before our forces on the frontlines". Syria's defence ministry denied the report, saying: "There is no truth to news... about the army withdrawing from Homs". The rebels launched their offensive in northern Syria the same day a ceasefire took effect in the war between Israel and Lebanese group Hezbollah, which along with Russia and Iran have been crucial backers of Assad's government. Turkey, which has backed the opposition, yesterday said it would hold talks this weekend with Russia and Iran in Qatar to discuss the situation in Syria. Turkey's President Recep Tayyip Erdogan said he hoped the rebel advance would go off "without incident". Syria's Kurdish-led force expressed readiness for dialogue with Turkey and the rebels, saying the offensive heralded a "new" political reality for the country. Fearing the rebels' advance, tens of thousands of members of Assad's Alawite minority began fleeing Homs on Thursday, residents and the Observatory said. Homs was the scene of a year-long government siege of opposition areas and deadly sectarian attacks in the early years of the civil war.

North Gaza hospital director says Israeli strikes hit facility

People check the damage outside the Kamal Adwan hospital in Beit Lahya in the northern Gaza Strip

AFP | Gaza

YOU KNOW WHAT
 The Kamal Adwan hospital in Gaza has been hit by Israeli air strikes multiple times since the start of the war nearly 14 months ago, killing its intensive care unit director Ahmad al-Kahlut in an air strike late last month

The director of one of northern Gaza's last functioning health centres and the territory's civil defence agency said Israel conducted several strikes yesterday that hit the Kamal Adwan hospital. "There was a series of air strikes on the northern and western sides of the hospital, accompanied by intense and direct fire," said hospital director Hossam Abu Safieh, adding that four staff were killed. The Israeli army has not yet responded to AFP requests for comment on the strikes. Mahmud Bassal, Gaza's civil defence spokesman, told AFP that the Israeli army entered Kamal Adwan hospital, evacuated patients and arrested several Palestinians. Abu Safieh said that following the latest raid, no surgeons were left at the facility. The city of Beit Lahya, where the hospital is located, has been the site of an intense Israeli military operation for the past two months that has again escalated in recent days, forcing thousands to flee amid bombing, the civil defence agency said. Israeli forces have stormed Kamal Adwan on several occasions since the start of the war

"We've been dreaming of this for more than a decade," said Yazan, a 39-year-old former activist who survived the siege and is now living as a refugee in France. Asked whether he was worried about HTS's agenda, he said: "It doesn't matter to me who is conducting this. The devil himself could be behind it. What people care about is who is going to liberate the country."

'Panic'

Rik Peeperkorn, who representative in the Palestinian territories, told reporters from Geneva he had "extremely concerning information" from Kamal Adwan. He said the Israeli army was first spotted outside the hospital at 4:00 am (0200 GMT). He said that the international medical team said that "panic caused by the bombing and shelling, along with the panicked crowd inside the hospital" caused Gazans and the team to leave the hospital despite there being "no official evacuation order". Peeperkorn said that a "substantial amount" of people including patients and staff remained in the hospital, which is still "minimum operational". With little to no aid reaching Kamal Adwan since the start of the Israeli operation in Gaza's besieged north in early October, the hospital had run out of most supplies, including fuel. The Israeli army says its operation in the far north aims to keep Hamas militants from regrouping there. Rights groups have accused it of pursuing a plan to evacuate or starve all those remaining there, which Israel denies.

UK's Catherine to reflect on 'difficult times' at Christmas service

Britain's Catherine, Princess of Wales greets dignitaries as she arrives ahead of a Ceremonial Welcome

AFP | London

Britain's Catherine, Princess of Wales, yesterday will host a Christmas service at Westminster Abbey that will reflect on "the most difficult times" as she returns to public life after her cancer diagnosis. The London carol service will "reflect upon the importance of love and empathy, and how much we need each other, especially in the most difficult times of our lives", according to Catherine's Kensington Palace office. Each guest will receive an order of service illustrated by British artist Charlie Mackesy that will ask "how did I help?", with the reply "you were by my side, which was everything". Catherine is expected to attend alongside husband Prince William and their children Prince George, Princess Charlotte and Prince Louis. The princess said in September that she had completed her chemotherapy treatment for an unspecified cancer and was looking forward to undertaking more engagements "when I can". She attended Remembrance Day events last month and visited Southport in northwest England in October to meet people affected by a knife attack in July that killed three young girls. Families affected by the attack are among the 1,600 people invited to the service, according to the BBC. Among the guests are those "who have supported others in their communities, whether on a personal level with friends and family, through their work, or as they selflessly give up their time through volunteering," said Kensington Palace.

Georgia PM says 'won battle' with pro-EU protesters as crisis deepens

AFP | Tbilisi

Georgia's Prime Minister Irakli Kobakhidze yesterday claimed victory in a "battle" against the pro-Western opposition, even as a crisis fuelled by his suspension of EU talks showed no signs of easing. Tbilisi has been engulfed in turmoil since the governing Georgian Dream party -- accused by critics of creeping authoritarianism and steering the country back towards Russia -- declared that it had won a disputed October 26 election. Tens of thousands have taken to the streets to protest

1,500 pupils walk out of N. Macedonia school over bullying

AFP | Skopje

More than 1,500 primary and middle school pupils yesterday boycotted classes in North Macedonia's capital Skopje after a boy accused of bullying returned to their school, local media reported. The third grader (aged eight to nine) has been accused of repeated bullying over a number of years in a rare case that has shocked the public and brought the country's education system under scrutiny. According to parents of pupils at the school, the boy's bullying began two years ago when aged just six or seven and included verbal and physical harassment, beating, vandalism of school equipment, sexual harassment and even threats with a knife. The boy's father had tried to enroll his son in a different school at the beginning of the week but the educational establishment cancelled that move after children there staged a boycott in protest. On Wednesday, he returned to his previous school, only for his classmates to walk out.

Romania's top court scraps presidential election

AFP | London

Romania's constitutional court announced yesterday that it had annulled the presidential election following allegations of Russian interference, effectively cancelling the second-round run-off that had been due to take place this weekend. Romanian authorities had cried foul after far-right outsider Calin Georgescu topped the first round of presidential elections on November 24, a surprise result in the EU and NATO member bordering Ukraine. On Wednesday, the presidency declassified documents detailing a slew of allegations

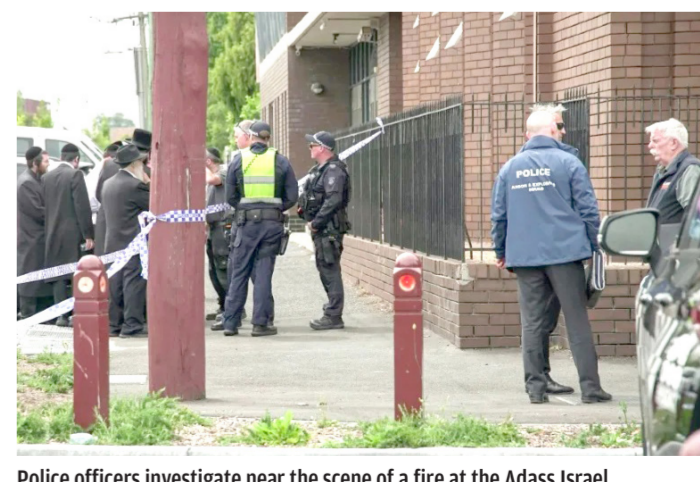

Demonstrators hold EU and Romanian national flags during a pro-European rally against Georgescu and Russia, including "massive" social media promotion and cyber-attacks. The court said it had decided "to annul the entire electoral process for the election of the President of Romania... to ensure the correctness and legality of the electoral process".

Arsonists set Melbourne synagogue ablaze

Mask-wearing arsonists set a synagogue ablaze in a pre-dawn attack yesterday in the Australian city of Melbourne, police said, sparking widespread condemnation. The fire broke out at 4:10 am (1710 GMT Thursday) in the Adass Israel Synagogue when some congregants were already inside, police said, gutting much of the building in the southeast Melbourne suburb of Ripponlea. No serious injuries were reported. A witness entering the synagogue for morning prayers saw "two individuals wearing masks", according to Detective Inspector Chris Murray of the

Amorim tempers Man Utd expectations

Manchester United's new manager navigates challenges after Arsenal defeat in Premier League

● United sit 13th, three points from top six

● Recent performances show mixed results and inconsistency

● Defeat at Arsenal highlights gap with title contenders

AFP | London

Ruben Amorim believes he has to keep expectations in check at Manchester United after the optimism surrounding his positive start was punctured by a 2-0 defeat at Arsenal.

The Portuguese has had a rollercoaster introduction in his first two weeks in charge of the English giants.

A disappointing 1-1 draw at lowly Ipswich was followed by an eventful 3-2 Europa League win over Bodo/Glimt.

Everton's 4-0 thrashing at Old Trafford last weekend was the first time United had won a

However, the gulf between the Red Devils and those sides challenging for the Premier League title was evident as the Gunners eased to victory at the Emirates Stadium on Wednesday.

United sit 13th in the table but are only three points off the top six.

"It's hard because it's very competitive this league and changes all the time with just one result," Amorim said at his

"Before this Arsenal game you guys were asking about the top four, and now we return to this position. Nowadays it's like that.

"We have to manage expectations and at the same time when you have a bad result you have to be calm and continue to do the job that we are doing."

Off the field it has been a sad week for United as popular former receptionist Kath Phipps, who worked at the club for over 55 years, died at the age of 85 on Thursday.

"You feel it today," added Amorim. "It's a sad day. Everybody talks about lady Kathy.

"You feel it, the love, the way (United technical director) Darren Fletcher speaks about her, so she was a really important person here that represents everything this club is.

Messi to kick off new Club World Cup, Neymar to face Real

AFP | Miami

Lionel Messi and Inter Miami will kick off FIFA's new 32-team Club World Cup when the Major League Soccer side take on Egypt's Al Ahly in the June 15 opener, the draw for the tournament revealed on Thursday.

Brazilian team Palmeiras and Portugal's Porto complete Group A alongside Argentina World Cup winner Messi, whose Miami team were handed a spot by FIFA after finishing top of the regular season standings in MLS.

Messi's former Barcelona team-mate, Brazilian Neymar, will have a reunion with La Liga rivals and European champions Real Madrid in Group H.

Twelve European clubs will feature in the tournament with Manchester City facing Juventus in Group G of a tournament which FIFA president Gianni Infantino said would "start a new era in club football".

Paris Saint-Germain were drawn in a tough group with Atletico Madrid, Copa Liberta-dores winners Botafogo of Brazil and Seattle Sounders.

FIFA has had to deal with some scepticism over the need for the tournament and the chances of it capturing the imagination of fans but there was plenty of support for the competition among those at the draw.

Club officials and former players gathered for Thursday's draw and US President-elect Donald Trump sent his best wishes in a video message before the ceremony, which took place during a 90-minute live broadcast from a television studio in Miami.

The Club World Cup is expected to attract global attention and showcase the world's best club teams competing on a single stage

"The event is going to be incredible," said Trump in his message where he praised Infantino as a "winner".

"We've known each other a long time and I'm so honoured to have this kind of relationship because soccer is going through the roof as everyone knows," he added.

The USA will co-host the 2026 World Cup with Mexico and Canada.

Trump's daughter Ivanka took part in the draw which was presented by former Juventus and Italy forward Alessandro Del Piero and featured celebrities such as model Adriana Lima.

The final of the tournament will be held at MetLife Stadium in New Jersey on July 13.

Vinicius back for Real Madrid Champions League clash: Ancelotti

AFP | Madrid

Real Madrid coach Carlo Ancelotti said star forward Vinicius Junior will be back from injury quicker than expected to face Atalanta in the Champions League on Tuesday.

The Brazilian winger suffered a hamstring injury in November which was expected to keep him out until the Intercontinental Cup final on December 18.

However Vinicius was able to train yesterday and Ancelotti said he would return next week, missing Saturday's La Liga visit to face Girona.

"Vini has recovered from his injury very well, he will not be ready for tomorrow but he will be for the next Champions League game," Ancelotti told a news conference yesterday.

Vinicius' return bolsters a Madrid side which has suffered three defeats in their opening five European matches, sitting 24th in the Champions League group table.

The coach said defender David Alaba, who also trained with the team, was finding fitness after a long-term knee injury and could return in January.

With Vinicius sidelined, even more focus has been cast on misfiring superstar striker Kylian Mbappe after his arrival from Paris Saint-Germain in the summer.

The French forward missed penalties in defeats by Liverpool and Athletic Bilbao in the past fortnight and is struggling to find his best form, with 10 goals in his first 20 matches across all competitions.

Hamdan and Al-Imran Schools edge closer to handball final

TDT | Manama

Hamdan City and Ahmed Al-Imran Schools secured narrow victories in the first leg of the semi-finals of the Khalid Bin Hamad Handball Championship for Boys' High Schools. The matches, organized by Bahrain's Ministry of Education's Physical Education Department, were held at the Bahrain Handball Association arena.

Hamdan City School triumphed in a nail-biting match against Sheikh Khalifa Bin Salman Institute of Technology, winning 40-39. Star player Mohammed Ahmed Tarada led the way with an impressive 22 goals, earning the Man of the Match award. Despite strong resistance, Sheikh Khalifa's team fell short due to missed opportunities and errors in the final minutes.

In the second match, Ahmed Al-Imran School defeated Al-Hidaya Al-Khalifiya School 33-31, with standout player Mohammed Haitham Aoun contributing seven goals and claiming the Best Player accolade.

The return leg is scheduled for Sunday, December 8, at the same venue. Hamdan City will face Sheikh Khalifa Institute, while Ahmed Al-Imran takes on Al-Hidaya Al-Khalifiya.

Quarterfinal lineup set for School Football Championship

TDT | Manama

The Nasser Bin Hamad Football Championship for Boys' High Schools has finalized its quarterfinal lineup following a thrilling conclusion to the preliminary rounds in Groups 3 and 4.

In Group 3, Ahmed Al-Imran School maintained their dominance, defeating Bahrain Bayan School 4-3 in a high-stakes match. Despite the loss, Bahrain Bayan advanced on goal difference, edging out Sheikh Abdulaziz Bin Mohammed Al Khalifa School, who exited the tournament despite a 3-0 win over the American School.

Group 4 saw Al-Hidaya Al-Khalifiya School secure their place with a crucial 2-0 victory over the British School, who also advanced as runners-up. Hamdan City School delivered an emphatic 7-0 win over Al-Noor International but failed to progress.

Quarterfinal matches are set to begin on Sunday, December 8, with notable clashes including Ahmed Al-Imran School against Brights International School and Al-Hidaya Al-Khalifiya facing Modern Knowledge School.

'New Stoke' Arsenal aiming to be 'kings of everything', says Arteta

AFP | London

Arsenal boss Mikel Arteta said his side want to be "the best in the world" in every aspect after receiving plaudits for the Gunners' prowess from set-pieces.

Two goals from corners were enough to reignite Arsenal's Premier League title challenge with a 2-0 win over Manchester United on Wednesday.

That took the tally of goals scored by Arteta's men from corners since the beginning of the 2023/24 season to 22 - five more than any other side in Europe's top five leagues.

"Arsenal are the new Stoke City - depending on set-pieces to give them the win," said former Manchester United forward Dimitar Berbatov in his post-match punditry.

Stoke excelled from set pieces during a 10-year spell in the Premier League between 2008 and 2018.

"I understood very well what Dimitar Berbatov said, it was in the best possible way. We take it as a big compliment," said Arteta.

Stoke excelled from set pieces during a 10-year spell in the Premier League between 2008 and 2018

"We want to be the kings of everything. On set pieces, the best in the world, on high press the best in the world, attacking in open spaces, the best in the world.

"Best atmosphere and stadium, the best at everything. Before it was we didn't score enough, we didn't challenge, we didn't win big games for 20 years. We want to be the best at everything."

Arsenal's return to form with four consecutive victories in all competitions has propelled them back to within seven points of Premier League leaders Liverpool.

Australia on top in 2nd India Test after Starc takes six

AFP | Adelaide

Australia lost opener Usman Khawaja but took first day honours at the day-night second Test in Adelaide yesterday after a Mitchell Starc onslaught saw India crumble to 180 all out.

At the close, the hosts were 86-1 with Nathan McSweeney not out 38 from 97 balls and Marnus Labuschagne on 20 after the visitors were dismissed on the cusp of tea after winning the toss and opting to bat.

A menacing Starc was India's chief destroyer.

He gave the hosts a dream start in removing Yashasvi Jaiswal with the first ball of the match and ended with 6-48 -- his best Test figures.

In reply, Australia weathered 10 overs of the pink ball at dusk before Jasprit Bumrah's persistence paid off, finding extra movement and with it a thick edge from Khawaja (13) that carried to Rohit Sharma at slip.

Fellow opener McSweeney took 17 balls to get off the mark and had a life on three when dropped by wicketkeeper Rishabh Pant.

But he made the most of his fortune, showing maturity in his second Test, while Labuschagne survived a nervy start as he targets a big score after a lean spell.

India came into the clash riding high after a 295-run victory at the first Test in Perth, but Australia have a formidable record in Adelaide, winning all seven pink-ball Tests they have played at the venue.

The visitors retained Jaiswal and KL Rahul as openers in preference to Rohit, who missed the first Test on paternity leave and came in at six.

But the plan backfired as Starc sensationally trapped Jaiswal lbw from a swinging first ball, with the left-armer's pumped-up celebration showing how much it meant.

Jaiswal scored 161 in his last innings.

The returning Shubman Gill then stroked two boundaries in an eventful first over.

But the runs dried up and Rahul was at the crease for 40 minutes without scoring when he was given out, caught behind off Scott Boland.

McLaren dominate Abu Dhabi practice

Lando Norris and Oscar Piastri lead the pack in Friday practice as Ferrari's Leclerc faces grid penalty

● Lando Norris tops second practice session in Abu Dhabi

● Verstappen and Russell struggle to find pace

● Red Bull faces challenges in closing the gap to McLaren

AFP | Abu Dhabi

British driver Lando Norris led Australian team-mate Oscar Piastri in second practice yesterday as McLaren turned up the heat in their bid to secure the constructors' title at the season-ending Abu Dhabi Grand Prix.

Ferrari's Charles Leclerc had topped the opening practice session at the Yas Marina Circuit ahead of Norris and Lewis Hamilton, but the Monegasque driver was then penalised for taking a new battery pack on his car.

Leclerc's 10-place grid penalty for Sunday's race compromises the Italian team's bid to capture a first constructors' title since

McLaren's British driver Lando Norris drives during the second practice 2008.

"We've got to do something special and to overperform," said Leclerc, having conceded that McLaren's pace was exceptional.

Ferrari need to overturn a 21-point deficit on leaders McLaren, who last won the constructors' title in 1998, this week-end.

Norris clocked one minute and 23.517 seconds to beat Piastri by two-tenths of a second, ahead of third-placed Nico Hulkenberg of Haas.

"We still have a tough fight tomorrow. It probably looks better than it is for us," said Norris.

"We've continued with the good pace we had from Qatar and it feels strong, but the others haven't turned up their engines yet."

Norris added: "We're still try-

McLaren are on track to win their first constructors' title since 1998, holding a 21-point lead over Ferrari ahead of the season-ending Abu Dhabi Grand Prix ing to find the balance. It's nothing huge. Small things to get the balance between being quicker and saving the tyres, especially on the longer runs."

Carlos Sainz was fourth fastest in the second Ferrari followed by seven-time champion Hamilton, the British driver in his last race weekend with Mercedes.

Leclerc was sixth in the second Ferrari ahead of Sauber's Valtteri Bottas, Kevin Magnussen in the second Haas, Williams' Alex Albon and RB's Yuki Tsunoda.

Leclerc, who was accompanied by his brother Arthur, an F1 rookie, in opening practice, was forced to take a new battery pack, his third of the season for which only two units are allocated in the regulations.

Williams duo Albon and Franco Colapinto face five-place penalties for exceeding gearbox components usage.

'It's tricky'

The feuding pair George Russell of Mercedes and Red Bull's newly-crowned four-time world champion Max Verstappen struggled to find the pace and wound up 13th and 17th, respectively, in a largely uneventful twilight session.

"Not good," said Verstappen, who had announced earlier that he is to become a father for the first time with his partner Kelly Piquet, daughter of Brazil's triple world champion Nelson Piquet.

"The balance is off and there is no connection in mid-corner so it is difficult to push and we need to work it overnight," said the Dutch driver.

"I'm sure we can do better, but maybe not to the McLaren level. If we can get into the top six, that would be a great recovery."
