Levy Law on Hold

Shura Council puts brakes on infrastructure levy revamp

Mahir Haneef TDT | Manama

he Shura Council yesterday decided to return a proposal seeking a new criteria for calculation of infrastructure levy for further study by its subcommittee.

Such a decision was taken after considering and discussing the report submitted by the Public Utilities and Environment Committee regarding the proposal to amend the 2015 Infrastructure Levy Law.

Through the proposal, it was suggested that the infrastructure levy should be calculated on the basis of the area where the property is situated, size of the property, the purpose of construction, size of the roads around the property, accessibility to public services and governmental facilities, etc.

While BD12 per square metre was being collected earlier, with

News in brief

◆ Nearly 160 Iraqi families have been repatriated from Syria's Al-Hol camp, home to tens of thousands of people including family members of suspected jihadists, an Iraqi government spokesman said yesterday. More than 43,000 Syrians, Iragis, and foreigners from at least 45 countries are held in the squalid and overcrowded camp in Kurdish-controlled northeast Syria. Al-Hol houses relatives of suspected Islamic State (IS) group militants alongside refugees. "157 families, or 625 people" had returned to Iraq from Al-Hol on Saturday in the latest repatriation effort, Ali Abbas, spokesman for Iraq's migration ministry, told AFP. Upon arrival in Iraq, authorities usually keep returnees from Al-Hol for weeks or even months at what officials describe as a "psychological rehabilitation" facility in Al-Jadaa, south of Mosul, where they also undergo security checks. More than 1,920 Iraqi families have been transferred so far to Al-Jadaa, national security adviser Oassem al-Araii said on March 2. The figure includes 1,230 families who had been allowed to return home, Araji said.

Hezbollah said it had launched "dozens of katyusha-type rockets" in the morning on the Israeli village of Meron, eight kilometres (five miles) from the border.

Meron is home to a major air control base that the Iran-backed group has targeted several times since the start of the year.

Hezbollah said it had acted "in response to Israeli attacks against villages in the south and the homes of civilians", particularly the targeting of the home of a fighter in Kherbet Selm the day before.

Bank's duty on information regarding clients

DR. ABDELGADIR WARSAMA GHALIB

AWARSAMA@WARSAMALC.COM

The relationship between a bank and his client is, normally ■ looked at as a very special relation due to the trustworthiness and confidence supporting and surrounding this special

The customer comes to the bank with full trust that all his dealings, banking transactions, account details, are well kept and taken care of in the most appropriate professional banking standards and in complete secrecy from undesired eyes or ears.

The secrecy, is a golden rule that goes back to the inception of banking business and has been codified and provided for in the banking laws and regulations. This is in addition to the fact that secrecy of information regarding clients is a built-in banking practice that has been observed by all prudent bankers.

A relevant question has been raised by bankers and other interested bodies, that is to say, what are the limits regarding the duty of the banks with reference to information related to their customers?

As a rule, the duty of secrecy goes beyond the state of the account. It extends at least to all transactions that go through the account, and to the securities, if any, given in respect of the account. It is very important to mention that the duty of secrecy, in relation to such matters, extends even beyond the period when the account is closed, or ceases to be

Mark Wahlberg explains why he won't 'celebrate' fitness goals for long: 'It's onto the next!'

Mark Wahlberg Celebretainment | Los

Mark Wahlberg likes to make new fitness goals every day.

The 52-year-old actor is known for staying in shape or drastically changing things up for his roles in blockbuster movies like 'Transformers' and 'Father Stu' but insisted that he doesn't celebrate his achievements for long before moving on to his next fitness target.

He told Fox News Digital: "You know what, clean living is the key. Eat right, exercise, everything in moderation. If you're going to have a couple of glasses of Flecha - neat, clean, have some water, recover – everything in moderation. You always want to celebrate your accomplishments and work hard, but on to the next.

"Don't spend too much time dwelling on something you've already done. We have new goals every day, more things to accomplish. We want to encourage people to be the healthiest, best versions of themselves."

The 'Uncharted' star also explained that "recovery" is the most important thing when going through his body transformations and suggested that keeping hydrated before going to bed - espeically after drinking a small amount of neat alcohol - is paramount to achieving the desired result.

"Well, recovery is the most important thing, but you always have to get the proper amount of rest, the proper amount of hydration, and recovery is the key, especially if you're getting older.

Tillie Bobby Brown ac-Mille Book, Included a cidentally sparked pregnancy rumours when she bought nappies for her pet lamb.

The 'Stranger Things' actress and her fiance Jake Bongovi live on a farm with nine of their own dogs and 23 foster pooches, four cats, two donkeys, two sheep, two cows, three goats and a pony, and she told how she raised one of the creatures "in [her] bed", looking after him until he was fully grown.

Speaking on 'The Jonathan Ross Show', she said: "Actually, I raised him in my bed. He was a few days old, and I bottle-fed him until
