Man jailed for child sexual abuse and extortion

● Three years in prison followed by deportation

TDT | Manama

The High Criminal Court has sentenced a Pakistani man to three years in prison, confiscation of seized materials, and permanent deportation from the Kingdom upon completion of his sentence.

The man was found guilty of sexual harassment, child extortion, and possession of child pornography.

The case stems from a report filed by the Child Protection Unit in Cyberspace, part of the General Directorate of Combating Corruption, Economic and Electronic Security at the Ministry of Interior.

The report alleged that the defendant had impersonated a young girl on a social media platform, luring young girls and children into sharing private photos and videos of themselves in compromising situations.

Demands

He then proceeded to extort them by threatening to share the content with their families and friends if they did not comply with his demands.

The Public Prosecution promptly initiated an investigation upon receiving the report.

They took statements from the victim and her family, ordered an examination and analysis of the devices used in the crime, and interrogated the defendant. He confessed to the charges against him.

The Public Prosecution then ordered his detention pending investigation and subsequently referred the case to the Criminal Court, which issued the aforementioned sentence.

The Public Prosecution urged parents to educate their children about the dangers of interacting with strangers on social media.

What you can and can't sell online

Bahrain implements new regulations on virtual commerce, expands scope and new limits for vendors

Mohammed Darwish
TDT | Manama

Online vendors in Bahrain are adjusting to a revised regulatory framework following a directive from the Ministry of Industry and Commerce

This new measure allows holders of a virtual commercial licence to sell 71 different products online, though 12 specific items remain off-limits.

To qualify for a virtual commercial licence, applicants must be Bahraini nationals operating as sole proprietors with a permanent address.

Once licensed, vendors can enter the online marketplace, but certain products, such as food and beverages, medical devices, and heavy machinery, are prohibited.

Restricted list

The restricted list also includes industrial chemicals, tobacco, petroleum and gas products, fertilisers, live animals, waste materials, and weapons — items that typically require special approval.

For aspiring online chefs, the regulation sets out three key conditions: the commercial registration number must be clearly displayed on the chef's website or platform; cleanliness standards during food preparation must be upheld; and the safety of food, ingredients, and all related processes must be up to scratch.

Chefs may sell directly to consumers or partner with restaurants, hotels, and other estabishments.

The regulation also expands the range of products and services that can be offered online.

Offerings

From textiles and tailoring to electrical installations and antique stamp collecting, the online marketplace now accommodates a wide array of offerings.

Art galleries, equestrian supplies, software publishing, and public relations services are also permitted.

Opportunities are available in fashion design, photography, tourism, and interior design, as well as educational support, theatrical production, beauty services, and animal care.

However, virtual commercial licence holders are still barred from employing foreign labour under these regulations.

Directive

This directive also revokes three previous regulations: Decision No. 152 of 2016, which allowed commercial activities through virtual outlets; Decision No. 11 of 2021, which regulated online chef activities; and Decision No. 12 of 2021, which covered online sales through virtual outlets.

In summary, the updated regulation grants Bahraini entrepreneurs greater freedom to explore the digital marketplace while maintaining strict controls over specific sectors.

The landscape of online commerce in Bahrain is evolving — ensuring compliance with these guidelines is essential.

Court convicts businessman for tax evasion

TDT | Manama

The High Criminal Court has convicted a business owner for evading value-added tax (VAT) payments.

According to the Public Prosecution's Tax Evasion Crimes Unit, the court sentenced the defendant to six months in prison and ordered him to pay a fine equal to the amount of unpaid taxes, totaling BD35,327.319.

The case was initiated after the National Bureau for Revenue (NBR) filed a complaint against the defendant, who owns a sole proprietorship engaged in activities subject to VAT.

The prosecution's investigation revealed that the defendant had collected the applicable VAT from customers but failed to remit the funds to the NBR, in violation of the law.

During the trial, the defendant admitted to the charges presented against him.

Guilty

The court subsequently issued the guilty verdict, imposing both the prison sentence and the substantial fine.

The case is the latest in a series of actions taken by Bahraini authorities to combat tax fraud and ensure the proper collection of government revenues.

Woman cleared of forgery charges after High Court ruling reversal

TDT | Manama

A young woman, who was originally sentenced to six months in prison by a lower court for document forgery and improper financial gain, has been cleared of all charges by the High Court.

The higher court found no basis for the allegations against her, leading to a reversal of the lower court's decision.

The case began when one of her project partners complained that she had forged a contract and submitted it to a civil court in an attempt to secure an unwarranted financial award. The complainant claimed that she had already won a separate case granting her full entitlements and that she had filed another lawsuit to reclaim the same funds using the disputed document.

The lower court accepted these allegations, resulting in her conviction and sentence, which she subsequently appealed.

Following a detailed examination of the civil case records, the High Criminal Court found no evidence to support the forgery claims.

Amounts

It was determined that the amounts sought in both lawsuits were legitimate and supported by valid documents, with no indication of an attempt to claim funds twice.

The court also found no evidence of deceit or any motive for forging the contract. Consequently, the High Court overturned the initial verdict and cleared her of all charges.

Lawyer Ghadeer Al Aali, who represented the defendant, stated that the lower court had relied only on the statements of the complainant and their representative while overlooking all supporting documents.

Poland inks deal for 48 Patriot air-defence launchers

AFP | Warsaw, Poland

Poland signed yesterday a contract to build 48 launchers for the US-designed Patriot air and missile defence systems to boost Warsaw's military capabilities.

The eastern European country has accelerated the modernisation of its armed forces after Russia began a full-scale invasion of neighbouring Ukraine in 2022.

According to the deal signed on Monday, the M903 launchers will be produced at Stalowa Wola steelworks in Poland and are expected to be delivered to the Polish army between 2027 and 2029.

On Friday, Poland inked a deal with the United States to buy hundreds of AIM-120C AMRAAM air-to-air missiles.

According to Polish media, Warsaw and Washington will in the coming days sign another defence deal on the purchase of 96 US-made AH-64E Apache combat helicopters valued at more than $9 billion.

US orders carrier group to hasten Middle East arrival

The United States announced last week that it was deploying the strike group

AFP | Washington, United States

US Defence Secretary Lloyd Austin ordered an aircraft carrier group to hasten its arrival in the Middle East, the Pentagon said Sunday, as mounting tensions raise fears of a region-wide war.

It is a show of support for key US ally Israel after Iran and the Lebanese Hezbollah group vowed to avenge last month's killings of Hamas political chief Ismail Haniyeh and Hezbollah commander Fuad Shukur.

Austin ordered the aircraft carrier strike group led by the USS Abraham Lincoln, and equipped with F-35 fighters, to 'accelerate its transit' to the region, said Pentagon spokesman Major General Pat Ryder.

He said Austin, who spoke with his Israeli counterpart Yoav Gallant on Sunday, had also ordered the USS Georgia guided missile submarine to the area.

Ryder said the pair discussed 'the importance of mitigating civilian harm, progress towards securing a ceasefire and the release of hostages held in Gaza,' and efforts to deter aggression by Iran-aligned groups in the region.

Helicopter crashes into hotel roof in northeast Australia

AFP | Sydney, Australia

A helicopter crashed into the top of a Hilton hotel in northeastern Australia yesterday, killing the pilot and igniting a fiery explosion on the building's roof.

Hundreds of patrons were evacuated from the DoubleTree by Hilton in the tropical tourist hub of Cairns after the twin engine helicopter crashed around 1.50 am local time.

Mangled pieces of the helicopter's propeller landed in the hotel's pool, an emergency services official said.

Witness Amanda Kay said her assistance dog woke her up before the crash, which she watched from her balcony nearby.

"There was a light chopper and it was flying super low, with no clearance lights on," she told AFP. "It was flying so erratically."

"There was this huge explosion because it had crashed into the building. It was a big bang."

Police said the pilot, who was the sole passenger in the helicopter, died at the scene.

"They just flew into that building," a female voice says in a video shared on social media that captured the aftermath. "Madness, man," she adds as sirens blare in the background. "Shivers. People were living in that. It smashed right in."

The roof fire was extinguished later in the morning. Cairns is a popular tourist hub that offers a gateway to Australia's famed Great Barrier Reef.

Poor visibility The Australian Transport Safety Bureau commissioner Angus Mitchell said flying conditions were tricky at the time of the crash, with poor visibility and possibly rain.

"Our job now is to look at the facts that we can gather over the next couple of days, and to establish the sequence of events," he told reporters.

India blocks Bangladeshis fleeing chaotic regime change

AFP | Kolkata, India

India has arrested nearly a dozen Bangladeshis attempting to cross the border to escape violence and political tumult following deadly protests that led to the ouster of prime minister Sheikh Hasina, border officials said yesterday.

Hundreds more are waiting along the frontier pleading for permission to cross, India's Border Security Force (BSF) said.

India's BSF said 11 Bangladesh nationals had been arrested since Sunday trying to 'sneak' across the frontier into West Bengal state.

"Several hundred Bangladeshis nationals are still waiting in no-man's land to cross over the border," BSF deputy inspector general Amit Kumar Tyagi told AFP.

Bangladesh is almost entirely encircled by India, with the border stretching for more than 4,000 kilometres (2,485 miles), large parts of which are unfenced.

LEGAL VIEPOINT Unicitral arbitration rules

AWARSAMA@WARSAMALC.COM

DR. ABDELGADIR WARSAMA GHALIB

Arbitration is the most appropriate fastest process, as an adopted alternative dispute resolution (ADRs). The UNICITRAL arbitration model rules, are followed almost worldwide to lay down the foundation for such process if and as chosen by the concerned parties.

However, the parties shall be very careful and shall abide by the UNICITRAL arbitration rules very carefully. The procedures shall be followed, taking in consideration that procedural matters can destroy your case for good. As a fact, this is the rule in all legal proceedings, even in arbitration instances which take place away from judicial Courts.

In any arbitration dispute, there are normally two opposing parties. One claims a right & the other part objects and shall fully defends himself. As we say, the arbitration is the will or intention of the two conflicting parties wherein they opt for arbitration to settle their dispute.

As per the arbitral proceedings in the UNICITRAL arbitration rules, the "Statement of claim" is provided for in Article 20.1. To begin with, the claimant shall communicate it's "statement of claim" which shall be submitted in writing to the respondent and to each of the arbitrators. This shall take place within a period of time to be determined by the arbitral tribunal. The claimant may elect to treat its notice of arbitration referred to in article 3 as a "statement of claim", provided that the notice of arbitration also complies with the requirements of paragraphs 2 to 4 of article 2.

The "statement of claim" shall always include the following particulars, as the names and contact details of the parties, full statement of the facts supporting the claim, points at issue, the relief or remedy sought and the legal grounds or arguments supporting the claim. The statement of claim shall be very precise, but shall include all above ingredients. Any fact(s) not mentioned could be taken as relinquishment of such fact or right. Moreover, a copy of any contract or other legal instrument out of or in relation to which the dispute arises and of the arbitration agreement shall be annexed to the statement of claim. In other words, the statement of claim should, as far as possible, be accompanied by all documents and other evidence relied upon by the claimant, or contain references to them.

On the other hand, the "Statement of defense" shall be submitted by the respondent, who shall communicate its statement of defense in writing to the claimant and to each of the arbitrators within a period of time to be determined by the arbitral tribunal. The respondent may elect to treat its response to the notice of arbitration referred to as a statement of defense, provided that the response to the notice of arbitration also complies with the requirements as mentioned in the rules.

The statement of defense shall reply to the particulars mentioned in the statement of claim. Also, the statement of defense should as far as possible be accompanied by all docs and other evidence relied upon by the respondent or contain references to them.

In its statement of defense, or at a later stage in the arbitral proceedings if the arbitral tribunal decides that the delay was justified under the circumstances, the respondent may make a counterclaim or rely on a claim for the purpose of a set-off provided that the arbitral tribunal has jurisdiction over it. Amendments to the claim or defense, is possible according to the rules. During the course of the arbitral proceedings, a party may amend or supplement its claim or defense, including a counterclaim or a claim for the purpose of a set-off, unless the arbitral tribunal considers it inappropriate to allow such amendment or supplement having regard to the delay in making it or prejudice to other parties or any other circumstances. However, a claim or defense, including a counterclaim or a claim for the purpose of a set-off, may not be amended or supplemented in such a manner that the amended or supplemented claim or defense falls outside the jurisdiction of the arbitral tribunal.

To conclude, both disputing parties shall understand that the statement of claim and the statement of defense, is the opportunity for each party to explain the claim and likewise to give the defense. Take the opportunity to your advantage, give clear complete claim in clear and precise wordings. On the hand, in the defense side, you need to present your defense in clear acceptable way by pin-pointing your clear views against \ versus the claimant. It is your opportunity to defend yourself and also to submit, if needed \ acceptable, a counter-claim. Both parties are eligible to present what they have regarding the claims or defenses. After doing this, justice will take its place through the arbitration final award & justice will prevail.

Russian prez orders army to 'dislodge' Ukraine as over 120,000 flee border

AFP | Moscow, Russia

President Vladimir Putin ordered his army yesterday to "dislodge" Ukrainian troops who have entered Russian territory as authorities said over 120,000 people had been evacuated away from the fighting.

Kyiv launched a surprise offensive into Russia's western Kursk region last Tuesday, capturing over two dozen settlements in the most significant cross-border attack on Russian soil since World War II.

"One of the obvious goals of the enemy is to sow discord, strife, intimidate people, destroy the unity and cohesion of Russian society," Putin told a televised meeting with government officials.

"The main task is, of course, for the defence ministry to dislodge the enemy from our territories," he said.

Ukrainian military drone operators of the 22nd Mechanized Brigade assemble a Poseidon reconnaissance unmanned aerial vehicle on their position, in the Sumy region, near the border with Russia. Inset, Putin

Some 121,000 people have fled the Kursk region since the start of the fighting, which has killed at least 12 civilians and injured 121 more, regional governor Alexei Smirnov told the meeting with Putin.

Authorities in Kursk announced on Monday they were widening their evacuation area to include Belovsky district, home to some 14,000 residents. The neighbouring Belgorod region also said it was evacuating its border district of Krasnoyarskiy.

Ukraine has pierced into the region by at least 12 kilometres (seven miles) and has captured 28 towns and villages, with the new front 40 kilometres long, Smirnov said.

A top Ukrainian official told AFP over the weekend that the operation was aimed at stretching Russian troops and destabilising the country after months of slow Russian advances across the frontline.

Putin said Russia would respond by showing "unanimous support for all those in distress" and claimed there had been an increase in men signing up to fight.

"The enemy will receive a worthy riposte," he said.

'Maximum losses'

The assault appeared to catch the Kremlin off guard. Russia's army rushed in reserve troops, tanks, aviation, artillery and drones in a bid to quash it.

But it conceded on Sunday that Ukraine had penetrated up to 30 kilometres (20 miles) into Russian territory in places.

It said some forces were near the villages of Tolpino and Obshchy Kolodez, around 25 kilometres and 30 kilometres from the Russia-Ukraine border.

A Ukrainian security official told AFP, on condition of anonymity, that "the aim is to stretch the positions of the enemy, to inflict maximum losses and to destabilise the situation in Russia as they are unable to protect their own border".

The Ukrainian official said thousands of Ukrainian troops were involved in the operation.

Russia's defence ministry said on Monday that its air defence systems had destroyed 18 Ukrainian drones -- including 11 over the Kursk region.

'It's scary'

Russia's emergency situations ministry said on Sunday that over 44,000 residents in the Kursk region have applied for financial assistance, TASS news agency reported.

Russia's rail operator has meanwhile organised emergency trains from Kursk to Moscow, around 450 kilometres away, for those fleeing.

"It's scary to have helicopters flying over your head all the time," said Marina, refusing to give her surname, who arrived by train in Moscow on Sunday. "When it was possible to leave, I left." Across the border in Ukraine's Sumy region, AFP journalists on Sunday saw dozens of armoured vehicles daubed with a white triangle -- the insignia apparently being used to identify Ukrainian military hardware deployed in the attack.

At an evacuation centre in the regional capital of Sumy, 70-year-old retired metal worker Mykola, who fled his village of Khotyn some 10 kilometres from the Russian border, welcomed Ukraine's push into Russia.

"Let's let them find out what it's like," he told AFP. "They don't understand what war is. Let them have a taste of it."

Analysts think Kyiv may have launched the assault to relieve pressure on its troops in other parts of the frontline.

But the Ukrainian official said: "Their pressure in the east continues, they are not pulling back troops from the area," even if "the intensity of Russian attacks has gone down a little bit".

The Ukrainian official said he expected Russia would "in the end" stop the incursion.

Ukraine was bracing for a large-scale retaliatory missile attack, including "on decision-making centres" in Ukraine, the official said.

Analysts think Kyiv may have launched the assault to relieve pressure on its troops in other parts of the frontline.

Athens suburbs on fire as Greece calls on EU for help

Local residents cry as they try to save some belongings during a wildfire near Penteli

AFP | Penteli, Greece

A massive wildfire blazed into Athens' northeastern suburbs yesterday as hundreds of firefighters battled to contain it, forcing thousands of residents to flee their homes and sparking a Greek government appeal for international help.

In scenes never before seen in the Greek capital, residents wearing masks against the choking smoke were desperately dousing their homes with water hoses in the leafy suburbs of Nea Penteli and Vrilissia in an effort to render them less vulnerable to fire.

"(It's) the first time ever the fire has come here," said Melina Kritseli, 40, a civil servant living in a two-storey white house in Patima Halandriou, another

Athens suburb that was evacuated.

"I took my children to a friend's house to be safe," she told AFP as her husband hosed the ground and grass outside their house.

Television footage showed several cars gutted by fire and the roofs of stately homes burning as water-bombing helicopters roared overhead.

"The situation is dramatic," Penteli mayor Natassa Kosmopoulou told news portal newsit.gr.

"A school and homes are on fire, and I can see the fire coming towards the town hall," she said.

The National Observatory, Greece's foremost institute monitoring natural hazards, narrowly escaped.

A structure is engulfed by flames during wildfires that have been burning for the past 24-hours in the Grammatikos region

Greece on Monday formally called for EU assistance, a spokesman said.

"The EU civil protection mechanism was activated upon request of the Greek authorities," EU spokesman Balazs Ujvari said in a statement, adding that Italy, France, the Czech Republic and Romania were sending units to help.

"We stand with Greece as it battles devastating fires," EU chief Ursula von der Leyen wrote on X.

French Interior Minister Gerald Darmanin said Paris was sending 180 firefighters, 55 trucks and a helicopter to assist their hard-pressed Greek colleagues.

Help from Spain and Turkey is also being "finalised", the Greek civil protection ministry said.

Strong winds

The wildfire started on Sunday afternoon in the town of Varnavas, some 35 kilometres (22 miles) northeast of Athens.

Aided by strong winds, it grew to a 30-kilometre long frontline of flames, more than 25 metres (80 feet) high in places, according to state TV ERT.

"I heard my animals bleating and dying," Dimitris Megagiannis, a goat herder near Penteli, told Mega TV station.

Over 700 firefighters with nearly 200 fire engines and over 30 aircraft were trying to contain the fire.

Authorities opened the Olympic stadium in northern Athens and other stadiums to house thousands of people evacuated from the path of the blaze.

Greek firefighters try to extinguish a wildfire near Penteli

Three major hospitals have been placed on standby.

One firefighter suffered serious burns, another was hospitalised with breathing trouble and 13 other people were treated for milder respiratory problems, fire brigade spokesman Vassilis Vathrakogiannis said.

Several smaller communities and towns, including Marathon, which gave the Olympic long distance race its name, started to evacuate on Sunday.

Smoke drifted through central Athens as thick grey clouds engulfed Mount Pentelikon, which is known for producing the marble used in the Acropolis and other ancient buildings.

"Civil protection forces battled hard throughout the night, but despite superhuman efforts, the fire evolved rapidly," Vath-rakogiannis said.

The wind had rekindled the fire in 40 different locations on Monday, he said.

A children's hospital and a military medical facility in Penteli were evacuated at dawn, Vathrakogiannis said. Another hospital was evacuated during the day.

The destruction revived memories of the Mati disaster, the coastal area near Marathon where 104 people died in July 2018 in a tragedy later blamed on evacuation delays and errors.

The summer wildfire season in Greece this year has seen dozens of daily blazes after the Mediterranean country recorded its warmest winter and the hottest June and July since reliable data collection began in 1960.

Tom Cruise performs epic abseiling stunt to close Paris Olympics

Bang Showbiz | Paris

Tom Cruise abseiled down into the State de France during the closing ceremony at the Paris Olympics.

The 'Mission: Impossible' actor performed one of his trademark stunts at Sunday's ceremony as he slid 115-feet down a rope from the venue's roof as part of the handover to Los Angeles for the 2028 Games.

Tom was seen greeting athletes present at the ceremony before landing and taking the Olympic flag away on a motor-bike.

A pre-recorded segment then showed the 'Top Gun' star carrying the flag back to the US on a plane before he draped it over the Hollywood sign.

A report from TMZ earlier this month revealed that the Los Angeles element of the stunt was filmed in March and insiders admitted they had expected the Hollywood star to be spotted and the information to be leaked beforehand.

Cruise is said to have been the driving force behind the spectacle and approached the International Olympic Committee (IOC) himself about doing a series of stunts to bring the Paris and Los Angeles Games together.

Meanwhile, the ceremony also featured performances from H.E.R., Red Hot Chili Peppers, Billie Eilish as well as Snoop Dogg and Dr. Dre - with the 'Fight For You' hitmaker singing US national anthem 'The Star-Spangled Banner' in the stadium and the latter quartet performing from Venice Beach in LA.

The event also marked a celebration of the past fortnight of sporting action in Paris and IOC president Thomas Bach quipped that the Olympics had been "Seine-sational".

He said: "The Olympic Games Paris 2024 were a celebration of the athletes and sport at its best.

Jamie Lee Curtis is constantly aware of her nepo baby tag

Bang Showbiz | Los Angeles

Jamie Lee Curtis has never "shied away" from her status as a nepo baby.

The 65-year-old actress is the daughter of movie stars Tony Curtis and Janet Leigh and acknowledges that her family ties have had an influence of her own success in the industry.

Speaking as she received an honorary degree from the American Film Institute on Saturday (10.08.24), Jamie told PEOPLE: "Nepo babies is an easy way for people to tell you [that] you don't deserve your success.

"And I have been aware of that my whole life. I have not shied away from it. I am not under any delusion that hasn't had an effect and an impact."

Ariana Grande plans 2025 stadium gigs

Bang Showbiz | Los Angeles

Ariana Grande is planning to play a series of stadium shows in 2025.

The 31-year-old singer is said to be preparing for a host of gigs across the globe - including her first performances at UK stadiums - as she goes on the road for the first time since her Sweetener World Tour back in 2019.

A source told The Sun newspaper: "Ariana really wants to get out there and perform for her fans but at the same time she hates life on the road.

"It may sound glamorous touring the world but in reality it can be draining and you don't actually get to see much of the world.

"Right now plans are in their early stages but Ariana is determined to play a series of shows in 2025."

The insider added: "One option that's on the table is to do a handful of stadium gigs - that way tens of thousands of her supporters can see her without her having to do night after night after night at smaller arenas.

"She's never done UK stadium shows before. If she does it almost certainly would be at Wembley and then the Edinburgh ad up in Manchester."

Celine Dion condemns Donald Trump over use of My Heart Will Go On at US rally

Bang Showbiz | Los Angeles

Celine Dion has condemned Donald Trump's use of her 'Titanic' theme song 'My Heart Will Go On' at his Montana rally.

The 56-year-old Canadian singer has called out the former US president for "unauthorised usage" of the video, musical performance, and "likeness" of herself that was used as part of his campaign stop on Friday (09.08.24), as he continues to battle it out with Kamala Harris to be re-elected.

A statement on her official social media channels read: "Today, Celine Dion's management team and her record label, Sony Music Entertainment Canada Inc., became aware of the unauthorized usage of the video, recording, musical performance, and likeness of Celine Dion singing 'My Heart Will Go On' at a Donald Trump / JD Vance campaign rally in Montana. "In no way is this use authorized, and Celine Dion does not endorse this or any similar use. "...And really, THAT song? (sic)"

The unauthorised use of the 1998 song comes after Celine fulfilled a "dream" by performing at the Olympics opening ceremony.

The 'Because You Loved Me' singer made her long-awaited return to live performing in Paris two weeks ago, and Celine took to social media to express her sense of pride.

Celine - who stopped performing live after she was diagnosed with Stiff Person Syndrome, a progressive neurological disorder that affects her muscles

- wrote on X: "Wow, what a night. Thanks to everyone at @Paris2024, @Olympics and @Dior who helped make this dream come true. And now, it's already time to go! I will miss you Paris! - Celine xx... (sic)" Celine closed the ceremony with a rendition of Edith Piaf's 'L'Hymne à l'amour'.

The award-winning singer subsequently took to social media to express her joy and gratitude, admitting that she felt "honoured" to perform at the opening ceremony and hailed Paris as one of her "favourite cities".

In a vibrant kickoff to its first-ever women's tennis initiative, the Bahrain Tennis Federation has unveiled a groundbreaking training programme designed to elevate the sport among women in Bahrain.

This fresh endeavor is set to engage local women, guiding them through the essentials of tennis and integrating them into the Federation's growing sports community.

The launch event, held yesterday evening at the Federation's picturesque courts in Isa Town, saw a remarkable turnout. Mohamed Salman, Board Member and Director of National Teams, and Jamiya Al-Nashaba, Chairperson of the Women's Committee, witnessed firsthand the enthusiasm surpassing the committee's expectations.

The overwhelming response led to an expansion of the programme to accommodate five groups, with four specifically tailored for beginners. A growing waiting list of eager participants, spanning various age groups and nationalities, signals a promising future for women's tennis in Bahrain.

Al-Nashaba lauded the recent surge in interest in tennis, attributing the momentum to the supportive leadership of Shaikh Abdulaziz bin Mubarak Al Khalifa, President of the Bahrain Tennis Federation. The Federation's commitment to local events and programme underscores its dedication to building a thriving sports culture.

Training for All Levels

The new programme caters to women at all skill levels, from novices to those with prior experience. It aims not only to enhance their tennis skills but also to build a sense of community through sport.

The sessions are scheduled in the evenings twice a week,

Rublev to face Popyrin for ATP Montreal title

AFP | Montreal

Andrey Rublev powered into his second ATP Masters 1000 final of the season on Sunday as he lined up a title match against Alexei Popyrin in Montreal.

Fifth seed Rublev, who won the Madrid Masters title in May, overcame a two-hour rain interruption as he beat Italy's Matteo Arnaldi 6-4, 6-2 in their semi-final.

He faces off for the trophy against Australian Popyrin, who put out last week's ATP Washington winner Sebastian Korda 7-6 (7/0), 6-3 in 92 minutes.

Rublev has had a patchy 2024, melting down several times on court in frustration with his play and being dis-

Olympics equipment heads for 'second life' post-Games

Organisers prioritize 'second life' for Olympic gear, from tennis balls to beach volleyball sand

- Six million items inventoried for post-Games use
- 90% of equipment has confirmed second-life plans
- Sports clubs to receive donated equipment

AFP | Paris

The stands have fallen quiet and the Athletes' Village is emptying. What happens to all the equipment now the 2024 Paris Olympics are over? Organisers have plans for it.

Over decades, the Olympics have forged a reputation for monumental waste, with whole stadiums sometimes left to rot once the two-week sporting extravaganza moves on.

But Paris promised to do things differently, using temporary venues to cut construction work but also forcing suppliers to think about a "second life" for the equipment they supplied, from tennis balls to the sand for the beach volleyball.

"Before we ordered anything, we thought about what this thing is going to become afterwards," Paris 2024 sustainability director Georgina Grenon told AFP in an interview last week.

The approach is new for a major global sports event, with her team initially looking for ideas they could copy from FIFA football tournaments or past Olympics before deciding they needed to invent one themselves.

"We also hired consultants and nobody could tell us if this had been done before," explained Grenon, whose team involves an expert in the so-called "circular economy".

The first step was drawing up an inventory of everything they needed for the biggest show on earth.

"It's as if you're organising a wedding. If you know you have

100 guests, then you need ten tables, 100 chairs etc," she said.

The Paris Olympics involved 32 different sports and around 10 million spectators.

"We made the list and it amounted to about six million things, six million objects," she explained.

Happy sports clubs

At the start of the procurement process, every time Paris 2024 issued a tender, they included a clause asking the supplier to propose a second life for their products.

"We did this so that they could understand that we were not just looking to buy an object. Then it was up to them to propose us the best model," said Grenon.

Many of the facilities and much of the equipment used for the Olympics will be immediately redeployed for the Paralympics, which run from August 28 to September 8.

But after that, they will head to new homes.

The extra-fine sand used for the beach volleyball court in front of the Eiffel Tower, one of the Games' iconic venues, has been promised to a club in the Paris region.

Paris 2024 logos are set to be scrubbed off podiums so that they can be used elsewhere.

The 600,000 items of office furniture leased from French company Lyreco will be taken back and used by the firm to launch a new second-hand furniture business.

The more than 14,000 mattresses made from recycled plastic used in the Olympic Village will be given to the French army, while their cardboard bases will be recycled.

The tennis balls used at Roland-Garros, including those hit by teary gold medal-winner

YOU KNOW WHAT

At the start of the procurement process, every time Paris 2024 issued a tender, they included a clause asking the supplier to propose a second life for their products

Novak Djokovic, will be donated to French sports clubs, as will much of the other sports equipment from javelins to shot puts.

Greenwashing?

Grenon says the organising committee have confirmed second-life plans for 90 percent of their six million items, with final deals being worked out for the remainder.

Part of their plans involve providing opportunities for fans to buy souvenirs, including the flags used during medal presentations or torches made for the relay before the Games.

Two swimming pools, the climbing wall and the skateboarding parks are also set to be dug out and moved -- most of them to the deprived Seine-Saint-Denis suburb northeast of Paris.

The rented scaffolding from the temporary stands will be dismantled and re-used.

But despite the focus on sustainability, the Games have faced criticism, both for their environmental performance and for so-called "greenwashing" from major corporate sponsors such as steelmaker Arcelor or car maker Toyota.

Millions of plastic bottles have been used by sponsor Coca-Cola despite a pledge from organisers to reduce single-use plastics on Olympic sites by 50 percent compared to London 2012.

The event involves the production of vast quantities of merchandising as well as trinkets and one-off marketing giveaways that often end up in the trash.

Many environmental groups believe the Olympics are fundamentally unsustainable because of the amount of construction work involved and the millions of carbon-emitting flights taken by athletes and spectators.

But Grenon believes Paris 2024 has laid down a marker, with academics at the Harvard's MIT and France's INSEAD business schools studying their approach.

"We always said that we wanted to turn these Games into a laboratory and that we wanted to be an accelerator," she said.

Olympic medals: What's the real worth behind the glory?

Hussain Almaskati TDT | Manama

Winning gold at the Olympics is about more than just a medal; it's a moment of glory and national pride.

The 2024 Paris Games have introduced medals featuring iron from the Eiffel Tower, adding a historic touch.

Silver and Bronze: What's at Stake?

Silver and bronze medals, though not as coveted as gold, still carry significant value. The silver medal is composed primarily of silver and iron, worth about $486.

Bronze medals, made of copper, zinc, and iron, have a modest value of around $13. Yet, the real treasure is the prestige they

Compensation for Victors

Olympic athletes don't receive direct payments for competing, but medaling brings rewards. For instance, US athletes earn $37,500 for gold, $22,500 for silver, and $15,000 for bronze.

Payouts vary by country, with some nations offering substantial rewards, while others provide more symbolic support.

The medals might not be pure gold, silver, or bronze, but their worth goes far beyond material value, representing the pinnacle of athletic achievement.

From Biles to Djokovic: Stars of Paris Olympics

There were many contenders to be crowned stars of the 2024 Olympic Games which wrapped up on Sunday. Here is a look at six of the best

Simone Biles

Biles proved as popular a draw as the Eiffel Tower, the 1.42m bundle of brilliance standing tall on her return to the Olympics after the trauma of Tokyo.

In Japan she was forced to withdraw from most of the Games with a debilitating mental block known as the "twisties". Three years on, watched by an enraptured full house at Bercy Arena including her husband, NFL player Jonathan Owens, Tom Cruise and Lady Gaga, Biles resumed the gold run she had begun at Rio 2016.

The 27-year-old pipped Rebeca Andrade for the coveted all-around crown on her last tumble on the floor. That was book-ended by titles with the US team and vault -- where she executed her Yurchenko double pike, the Biles II, her sixth eponymous skill.

Stumbles on the final day as tiredness -- both mentally and physically -- set in left her with silver behind Andrade on the floor.

In a mark of her class as a person she bowed to the Brazilian on the podium.

Leon Marchand

A new star was born in the Paris pool with Leon Marchand enthralled packed houses at La Defense Arena by completing a feat not seen since the days of Michael Phelps.

The 22-year-old emphatically won all four of his individual races -- the 200m butterfly, 200m breaststroke and 200m-400m medley double.

It thrust him into elite company as the first male swimmer to do so at a singles Games since the American legend in 2008.

In an ominous warning, Marchand said "it's only the beginning", with his sights already set on Los Angeles in 2028.

Antoine Dupont

Half-time at a packed Stade de France and two-time Olympic champions Fiji looked in control against the hosts in the rugby sevens final. Enter Antoine Dupont.

Dupont, arguably the world's greatest 15-a-side player, had started on the bench so he could make the maximum impact with fresh legs in this high-octane sport.

That impact was immediate. Seizing on a loose ball from the second-half kick-off, he hared down the wing, outpacing Fiji sevens legend Jerry Tuwai and popping an inside ball to Aaron Grandidier-Nkanang for a simple try.

Dupont then scored two tries of his own to bring home the gold 28-7, in a fevered atmosphere that even seasoned commentators said they had never experienced at a rugby match.

Noah Lyles

Lyles arrived in Paris shouting about wanting to cement his legacy as the rightful heir to Usain Bolt. The American did win a 100 metres that will live long in the memory, edging Kishane Thompson of Jamaican by five thousandths of a second.

But he looked out of sorts in the 200m as Letsile Tebogo emphatically won to deny him the sprint double, then revealed he had tested positive for Covid.

He was therefore sidelined as the Americans flopped and were disqualified in the 4x100m relay.

Bolt, in contrast, won sprint doubles and the relay at three successive Games, only losing one relay gold due to a teammate's doping case.

Noah Lyles had confirmed that he tested positive for Covid-19 earlier this week and ran in Thursday night's 200-meter race anyway

Novak Djokovic

At the age of 37, Novak Djokovic finally won an Olympic gold medal to go along with his 24 Grand Slam titles.

The Serb defeated Carlos Alcaraz, 16 years his junior, in a memorable final at Roland Garros where has already been crowned French Open champion three times.

Djokovic achieved his dream the hard way -- having to defeat career-long rival Rafael Nadal in the second round in the pair's 60th meeting.

He then overcame aggravating a knee injury which had needed surgery in June during his quarter-final win over Stefanos Tsitsipas.

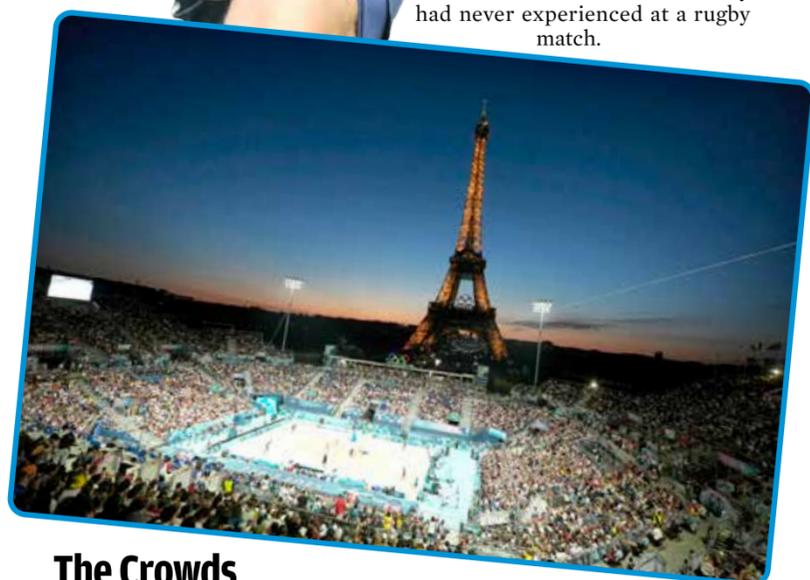

Djokovic said he wants to defend his title at the 2028 Olympics in Los Angeles when he will be 41.

"I love the drive, every day, every week of training my body, perfecting my game, improving myself still at this age," he said.

The Crowds

Any doubts about the French crowd's commitment to the Olympics were dispelled by the huge roar the first-time swim sensation Leon Marchand dived into the La Defense pool.

Marchand's march to four golds sparked a rhythmic roar from spectators every time his head broke the water -- even seasoned Olympians said the noise was extraordinary.

The French and fans from around the world also turned the spectacular beach volleyball venue next to the Eiffel Tower into a party every night that lit up millions of Instagram accounts.
