Tom Cruise's 'Mission: Impossible 8' set interrupted by a flock of sheep

Fox | Los Angeles

Tom Cruise and the rest of the "Mission: Impossible - Dead Reckoning - Part One" cast had to pause production after a run-in with a flock of sheep in the Lake District in England.

The actor, 60, was seen admiring the large flock as he stood to the side to make way for the sheep passing through. Cruise was also captured mid-air attached to a blue parachute while filming a scene in the upcoming movie.

Cruise, who plays Ethan Hunt in the film series, sported a black jumpsuit as he descended back down to the ground.

Cruise also recently had a run-in with Lake District vacationers. Adam Wheeler and Lucy Hinch were walking their Siberian Husky named "Blitz" when they stumbled upon Cruise and the movie set.

According to the Northern Echo, Cruise "happily" posed for a picture with the couple before hopping back inside of a helicopter used on set. "He was nice and polite and really humble. Tom Cruise apologized for the noise of the helicopters and asked if we were alright," Wheeler told the outlet.

"He was making sure everybody who wanted to, got their photos with him," he continued. "We were the last ones to get his picture and then he just paraglided off the mountain back to his camp next to Buttermere."

"I have seen a few of the Mission Impossible films but haven't really watched many of his others - but I definitely will now," Wheeler added.

He shared with the outlet that Cruise was performing all his own stunts and the pair waited for about an hour to get a chance to meet the star.

Cruise was photographed jumping off a mountain in the British countryside and paragliding down in July. Cruise began filming for "Mission: Impossible 8" immediately after wrapping up filming on "Mission: Impossible 7."

The films will be released as part one and part two of "Mission: Impossible - Dead Reckoning." The coronavirus pandemic did stall filming of "Mission: Impossible 7," which is now set to be released July 14, 2023, with part two slated to debut in the summer of 2024.

Blake Lively is expecting her fourth child.

The former 'Gossip Girl' star, 35, debuted her baby bump on the red carpet on Thursday (15.09.2022) at the 10th annual Forbes Power Women's Summit.

Blake already has three daughters - James, seven, Inez, five and Betty, two - with her husband Ryan Reynolds, who she began dating 2011 before marrying in 2012.

The pair - who keep their private life very under wraps - revealed their youngest child's name with the help of Taylor Swift, who named her 'Folklore' album track after the toddler in 2020 and later detailed how they trust the 32-year-old singer songwriter "implicitly".

Ryan, 45, said: "She's very sensitive to any of that stuff. And obviously, the song has nothing to do with our kids other than our kids' names. But I mean, what an honor. We thought it was pretty damn amazing. We still do. You know, I still walk down the street and shake my head thinking, 'I can't believe that happened.'"

The 'Deadpool' star recently shared about his decision to step away from acting for a bit to focus on fatherhood.

Ryan said: "The biggest thing for me, and I know you have kids as well, is that I don't want to miss this time with my kids."

Ryan Reynolds undergoes 'life-saving' colonoscopy

FIANS | Los Angeles

Hollywood star Ryan Reynolds had an "extremely subtle polyp" removed in a "potentially life-saving" colonoscopy.

The 'Deadpool' actor, 45, underwent the procedure with his friend Rob McElhenney, also 45, on camera in a new YouTube video to raise awareness of cancer, reports aceshowbiz.com.

Dad-of-three Reynolds, who shares his kids with actress wife Blake Lively, 35, joked he only agreed to publicly broadcast the procedure if Rob learned Welsh. He told viewers: "It's a simple step that could literally, and I mean literally, save your life."

Following his 30-minute rectal exam, Reynolds was told by his doctor an "extremely subtle polyp" had been found.

The medic told the actor: "This was potentially life-saving for you, I'm not kidding, I'm not being overly dramatic. This is exactly why you do this. You had no symptoms."

The doctor added after he removed the growth: "You are interrupting the natural history of a disease of something of a process that could have ended up developing into cancer and causing all sorts of problems."

Rob was found to have had three polyps, but was told they were "not a big deal".

The footage was produced in partnership with Lead from Behind and the Colorectal Cancer Alliance.

It comes after Ryan admitted about his mental health:

"I've had anxiety my whole life really. And you know, I feel like I have two parts of my personality, that one takes over when that happens."

'Traumatised' Britney Spears may never perform again

FIANS | Los Angeles

Singer Britney Spears has claimed that she "probably won't perform again" because she's "pretty traumatised for life".

The 'Toxic' hitmaker went on about the "worst" experience ever working with "offensive people" on her live shows in the past, and she suggested that she wouldn't return to the stage again because she's "stubborn" and wants to prove her "point", reports femalefirst.co.uk.

In a since-deleted Instagram post, she had said: "The most offensive SO CALLED professional

Britney Spears admitted last year that she was going through a "transition" in her life and isn't sure if she will ever take to the stage and perform for her fans again pictures on every tour. I mean they could have at least cheated and retouched them for me... just saying... two day shoots for new show in Vegas literally the worst ever...and me excited for the pictures for five months on tour...

they never showed me any."

"I'd rather quit s in my pool and shoot photos of myself in studios over working with the most offensive people in my life."

She added: "I'm pretty traumatised for life and yes I'm p* as f and no I won't probably perform again just because I'm stubborn and I will make my point."

The 40-year-old pop idol signed off the post: "kiss my God damn mother f a."

The 'Lucky' singer's last tour was 'The Piece of Me Tour' in 2018.

She previously said that she has "no idea" if she'll ever perform again.
