Bahrain witnesses higher education enrollment boom

TDT | Manama

New statistics released by the Higher Education Council of Bahrain reveal enrollment trends in private higher education institutions for 2023.

A total of 11,197 students from the Kingdom of Bahrain, the GCC, and outside the region were registered for studies in these institutions, compared to 14,550 students in 2022.

The figures highlight a strong interest from neighbouring Gulf Cooperation Council (GCC) countries.

A total of 429 Saudi students, including 267 female and 162 male students, enrolled in private higher education institutions in Bahrain during 2023.

Kuwait followed closely with 212 students, including 131 female and 81 male students. Oman recorded 31 students, Qatar 10, and the UAE 8. The statistics also show a significant number of non-GCC students enrolling in private higher education institutions in Bahrain, with 1,859 students registering. Of these, 986 were male and 873 were female.

In terms of GCC student enrollment in public higher education institutions, the statistics reveal a total of 1,907 students.

This includes 1,132 Saudi students (719 female and 413 male), 616 Kuwaiti students (438 female and 178 male), 152 Omani students (134 female and 18 male), 4 Qatari students, and 3 Emirati students.

"Each day we witness clear and unquestionable examples of war crimes and breaches of international humanitarian law in Gaza perpetrated by the State of Israel," Smith wrote in the resignation email.

He said concerns regarding the legality of arms sales that he raised "at every level" of the FCDO were "disregarded", and accused the UK government of failing to have a "robust and transparent" arms exports licensing

Japan to begin trial removal of nuclear debris from Fukushima reactor

AFP | Tokyo, Japan

The operator of Japan's ▲ stricken Fukushima nuclear power plant said yesterday it will send a probe inside a battered reactor this week for a trial removal of radioactive debris.

Tokvo Electric Power Company (Tepco) aims to retrieve a tiny sample of the estimated 880 tons of radioactive debris that is believed to sit inside reactors at the tsunami-hit nuclear plant.

The sample will be studied for clues about the condition of the inside of the reactors and their hazardous contents, a crucial step towards decommissioning the plant. "We will proceed carefully by putting safety as our highest priority," a Tepco official told a news conference Monday. The debris has radiation levels so high that Tepco has had to develop specialised robots that can withstand them to function inside.

Removing it has long been dubbed the most daunting challenge in the decades-long project to decommission the Fukushima.
