Tietnam will hold a fu-V neral next week for late communist leader Nguyen Phu Trong, the party said yesterday

Trong died on Friday at a military hospital in Hanoi "due to old age and serious illness" at the age of 80.

The funeral will take place over two days in the Vietnamese capital on July 25 and July 26, during which a period of national mourning will be observed, the Communist Party of Vietnam said.

for the party, state and people and his family," the statement said.

Trong's death was announced a day after Vietnam's Communist Party said he would hand the reins of power to the country's president and former public security minister To

At the time, the party said Trong would be focusing on treatment for an undisclosed medical condition, the first time it had addressed long-standing speculation about the ageing leader's health.

Trong is the first party general secretary to die in office since the death in 1986 of Le Duan, a brotherin-arms of Ho Chi Minh.

Now, here's the trick: a couple of months after they started operations, the company ran aground and shut shop, throwing their Bahraini employees out of work. It turns out that in the busy Bahraini start-up world, many companies are started as magnets to attract funding and once the funds are safely tucked away out of reach, the company cites business trouble and closes down.

I do believe that we need more due diligence and follow-up when precious funds are allocated to entrepreneurial ventures. There is no doubt that MSMEs which seek such help are the silver lining for future growth. The majority of them do their best to make a success of their venture. However, a few do try and trick the system and they, unfortunately, give the authorities reason to add even more clauses which make getting aid difficult for the real entrepreneurs.
