MOVIE REVIEW

'El Chicano' is a well-intentioned superhero movie

The film is being billed as the first Latino superhero film

● Raul Castillo plays the title role in the film

● 'El Chicano' is really more of a pedestrian grade-B cop thriller that lacks imagination

El Chicano is a 2019 American superhero film directed by Ben Hernandez Bray, who co-wrote the screenplay with Joe Carnahan.

It stars Raul Castillo, Aimee Garcia, and George Lopez. The film has been called the "first Latino superhero movie".

It premiered in September 2018 at the Los Angeles Film Festival and was released in the United States on May 3, 2019. As of May 16, 2019, the film holds an approval rating of 35% on review aggregator Rotten Tomatoes, based on 23 reviews by critics.

On Metacritic, the film has a weighted average score of 46 out of 100, based on reviews by 13 critics, indicating "mixed or average reviews".

Raul Castillo in the movie 'El Chicano'

The Hollywood Reporter praised the cast, including Castillo's "charismatic performance in the lead role" and the "vivid impressions" left by Marlene Forte and Aimee Garcia.

The Los Angeles Times positively noted the more inclusive take on "Hollywood cop movies from the '80s, when masculinity came only in a macho shade", but also criticized the film's portrayal of Mexican nationals as "demonized, criminal, carnage-friendly, nationalist invaders".

Writing for TheWrap, critic Monica Castillo similarly drew attention to the "fear-mongering cartel tropes" that failed to "undo the damage of hateful rhetoric aimed at Latinx and Latin American people". In discussing the film's violence, the San Francisco Chronicle observed that "these blurry, hurried scenes are among the most frustrating elements in a largely disappointing movie", while The New York Times noted that its "political and thematic purpose" was unclear.
